De Gaulle reveals plan for new common market

Britain to be part of program

(C) 1969 New York Times News Service

LONDON — President Charles de Gaulle has proposed to the British government that the common market be replaced by new European economic and political arrangements that would include Britain, according to informed sources here.

The sources said the general, in talks with the British ambassador in Paris, had advanced a radical new concept that would supplant the present European economic community with a broader free trade area and an inner four-power directorate of France, Germany, Italy and Britian.

He also argued that there would be no need for the North Atlantic Treaty Organization under American domination if Europe achieved true independence, the informants added.

The sources reported that De Gaulle had told Ambassador Christopher Soames that he had little faith in the common market, had no part in its creation, and suggested an enlarged European economic association to take its place.

New crisis

The dislosure of the talks, is certain to create a new crisis in the relations among the nations of West Europe. And it comes, complete with undertones of De Gaulle anti-Americanism, as President Richard M. Nixon prepared to leave this weekend on his European tour that will take him to Paris a week from Friday.

The source here said they felt obliged to reveal the details of the Feb. 4 meeting between De Gaulle and Soames after French newspapers published what were felt by London to be slanted versions.

The inclusion of Britain in such an economic arrangement would represent a major turnabout for France, which has vigorously opposed every British effort to join the common market and draw closer to its members.

Just this week, France created a dipomatic tempest by boycotting a London meeting of the Western European union, which includes Britain along with France's common market partners, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg.

In his talks with Soames over lunch, the general was said to have been anxious, before his plan proceeds, to have discussions with the British to see if the two countries saw eye to eye on economic, monetary, political and defense matters.

Apart from the common market issue, the general was said to have, bluntly argued that a European view had been made impossible by "pro-American feeling of all the countries in Europe and particularly the British."

Nixon may meet Vietnam official for talks in Paris

(C) 1969 New York Times News Service

PARIS — High-level exchanges were understood Friday to be going on between Washington, Saigon and the allied delegations to the Vietnam peace talks on the possibility of a meeting here between President Nixon and a South Vietnam official.

An American source said that if such a meeting were to be arranged, an announcement would be made in Washington.

Supporters of the Saigon regime here said Friday, that it would look like a snub if during his visit to Paris the American leader failed to see a representative of South Vietnam.

Allied informants suggested it was likely that Nixon would see the head of South Vietnam's delegation to the Paris talks, Pham Dang Lam, on the morning of Sunday, March 2. According to the President's announced timetable, briefings by the chief United States negotiator Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge, and other American officials are scheduled for that time.

However, Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky also seemed to be waiting in the wings for a chance to confer with Nixon. South Vietnam's delegation here said today it understood that the Vice President, now in Saigon, planned to be back here "in the first days of March."

Political coordinator

Ky serves as political coordinator for Saigon's team at the negotiations. He spent two weeks here in December and about the same time late in January and early this month. Before his departure for Saigon on Feb. 8 he told newsmen he did not know whether he would be in Paris during the Nixon visit.

If Ky is in Paris at the same time as the President, it would be unusual for the two men not to meet. On the other hand, it is widely felt here that President De Gaulle might feel affronted if such a meeting took place on French soil while the United States President was his guest. American officials here said Friday they had no direct information on Ky's travel plans, but they would not rule out that his return to Paris might coincide with Nixon's visit.

Nixon's program for his Paris visit was believed here to have been discussed in Saigon when the United States Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker conferred with President Nguyen Van Thieu today.

Nixon's timetable calls for a talk with De Gaulle on Sunday after the Vietnam briefings and before his departure for Rome to meet with Pope Paul VI. The U.S. President will have long talks with De Gaulle during the first two days of his visit here, Feb. 28 and March 1. French Foreign Minister Michel Debre has indicated that De Gaulle expects to discuss the Vietnam problem with Nixon.

Guard put on alert for California riots

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

National Guard troops were on alert Friday for any new disorders at the University of California, as the school's regents met near the Berkeley campus where police and demonstrators had clashed a day earlier.

Gov. Ronald Reagan, risking a confrontation with student militants by attending the meeting, encountered no trouble when he arrived. Asked earlier if he would take the risk, Reagan answered: "You bet your sweet life."

Elsewhere on the country's campuses, there were scattered incidents, some related to the fourth anniversary of the assassination of Malcolm X, black nationalist leader.

A group of Negro students, numbering anywhere from 30 to 100, invaded the main classroom building at Wesleyan University in Middletown, Conn., Friday and refused to admit anyone except other Negro students.

The demonstration followed a vote by faculty members Thursday, refusing a demand that the university honor the slaying of the black leader on Feb. 21, 1965. Individual faculty members had the right to suspend classes.

At the University of Pennsylvania, however, the dates of the assassination of Malcolm X and the Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., last April 4, were declared religious holidays.

University Provost David R. Goddard said classes won't be cancelled on the dates, but students need not attend. Students would be responsible for work assigned those days, but teachers were urged not to schedule exams then.

Scores of Negroes, many of them high school and college students, attended a "black awareness" memorial service for Malcolm X at Long Island University's Brooklyn campus. The Berkeley campus was quiet early in the day, with only a few scattered pickets at campus entrances. Workmen swept up the debris from the Thursday disorder.

A march by 2,000 demonstrators had followed a rally, to harass a meeting of the university regents. Police tried to break up the demonstration and tear gas was thrown, touching off a battle.

After the clash, 26 students and 13 police officers were injured and 14 youths and a girl arrested.

Elsewhere:

EAST LANSING, Mich.—About 40 students briefly interrupted a meeting of Michigan State University trustees, arriving ahead of the schedule. The trustees refused to hear the group and the students left.

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. —About 20 Negro students broke open the locks on a flag pole on the Pennsylvania State University campus and lowered the American flag to half staff in honor of Malcolm X. About 100 whites joined the group.

NORTH CAROLINA—Gov. Robert W. Scott told the heads of state supported colleges and universities they must call police officers to the campus if students seize a building or interfere with normal use of buildings and grounds.

About 100 Negro students boycotted classes at Rutgers University to protest rejection of 4 of 12 demands made by the Black Organization of students and in memory of Malcom X

Jerusalem blast claims two lives

JERUSALEM — A bomb exploded in Jerusalem's largest supermarket this morning, killing two Israeli youths and injuring nine other persons.

The blast in the Supersol Store on Agron Street came during its busiest period, the hours before the Jewish Sabbath.

Hundreds of shoppers, most of them women and many of them foreigners who buy there, were in the store at the time.

Nearly three month ago, on a Friday morning, a car packed with several hundred pounds of dynamite exploded in the Mahane Yehuda Open Market on the other side of town, killing 12 persons.

The bomb, in the Supersol, assumed to have been placed by Arab Saboteurs, tore through the rear section of the store. Cans, pakages and bottles flew like shrapnel. Decorations for the purim holiday were torn from the walls.

Women screamed and fled, fearing a second explosion.

Zvi Fisher, the manager of the store, raced to the public address system. "Nothing has happened," he said. "Take it easy, don't get excited."

Averts panic

His reassuring tone was credited later with having averted a panic.

Fifteen minutes later, with the store cleared of people, a fireman discovered another bomb.

This one, estimated to be about half the size of the 10-pound device that had exploded, was disarmed safely. It consisted of several packets of dynamite in a candy box hidden in the shelves of the housewares section.

Witness tells about RFK threat

(C) 1969 New York Times News Service

LOS ANGELES — A Pasadena garbage man testified Friday that Sirhan Bishara Sirhan had told him last April that he was planning to shoot Sen. Robert F. Kennedy.

Appearing as a prosecution witness at the first-degree murder trial of the 24-year-old Jordanian immigrant, Alvin Clark, 24, who works for the Pasadena Sanitation Department, told of having become friendly with Sirhan during the three years that he had picked up trash at the youth's modest frame house on E. Howard St.

Clark, a Negro, said that Sirhan had frequently brought out coffee for him and they had often had discussions.

Shortly after Clark took the witness stand in the crowded eighth-floor courtroom in the Hall of Justice, David N. Fitts, a deputy district attorney, said

"He was upset about the death of Martin Luther King," Clark said. "He says, 'What do you think the negro people are going to do about it?' and I says, 'what can they do about it?' ".

And then Clark startled the spectators in the courtroom as he continued:

Oswald's wife speaks for Shaw

(C) 1969 New York Times News Service

NEW ORLEANS — Mrs. Marina Oswald Porter, widow of presidential assassin Lee Harvey Oswald, testified Friday that her late husband had never known Clay L. Shaw or David W. Ferrie.

Shaw, a retired New Orleans businessman, is being tried on a charge of conspiring with Oswald and Ferrie to murder President Kennedy in Dallas on Nov. 22, 1963.

Oswald had no friends save a few relatives in New Orleans and spent every night but one at home, reading, during his residence in New Orleans from May until September, 1963, Mrs. Porter testified.

The one night he was away from her came when he was kept in jail overnight for fighting with a Cuban refugee on Canal Street in July, 1963 she said.

Other witnesses called by the defense today included Lloyd J. Cobb, president of the New Orleans International Trade Mart where Shaw was managing director until he retired in October, 1965, and Miss Goldie Naomi Moore, Shaw's private secretary for 19 years.

Three policemen wounded

Gunman kills two as house burns

WASHINGTON (AP) — Violence erupted in a quiet, middle-class Washington neighborhood Friday when a gunman barricaded himself in a house and killed two women before turning a shotgun on himself.

The gunman, tentatively identified by police as Thomas Walton, a roomer in the three-story, detached dwelling, also hit three police officers with shotgun blasts. Three other policemen were injured in the morning shoot-out.

One of the two women staggered out to the sidewalk during the shoot-out between Walton and scores of police officers and died. The other was shot and killed inside, police said.

Police indentified the women as Lela Bannister, owner of the house, and Ethyl White, who neighbors said was a maid.

Police were called to the scene by nearby residents at 8:30 a.m. after shots were heard. Sgt. Robert Householder, 32, and Pvt. Roland Bennett 28, both of College Park, Md., were met by a shotgun blast as they emerged from their patrol cars.

Scores of police responded to their emergency call, and Capt. John Reynolds, 48, of Greenbelt, Md., also was struck by a shotgun blast as he attempted to get close to the house.

At this point, the siege began, and police began trading pistol shots with the gunman who fired intermittently from a second floor window.

As reinforcements arrived, officers fired between 20 and 40 tear gas cartridges into the building. Eventually, smoke began pouring from blasted out windows.

During a prolonged lull in the shooting, a group off officers wearing bulletproof vests and helmets rushed the burning building.

One, Capt. Charles Monroe, was injured when he jumped from a window to escape the flames and smoke.

Earlier, an armored truck was brought to the scene through heavy rush hour traffic.

Inside the home—which eventually was gutted by flames—police and firemen discovered the gunman's body in a rear bathroom, and a woman's body in another room.

Police said the gunman had evidently shot himself.

There was no immediate explanation why Walton, a Negro in his early thirties, began his rampage. Police emphasized, too, that they could find out little about the man during the initial investigation.

Harrisburg schools stay cool

HARRISBURG (AP) — One of the most troublesome weeks in Harrisburg's public schools ended Friday with black students promising to maintain order in the future if they are accorded "recognition and respect as individuals" and police are kept out of the buildings.

Absenteeism was high at the city's two high schools and at least one of the junior high schools, with white pupils comprising most of the absentees.

Spokesmen for a black coalition of student leaders at William Penn and John Harris High schools said that everything was peaceful in the schools Friday. School officials generally agreed.

"We ask that white students please come back to school because there are no riots and will be no riots and they can come peacefully," said a statement issued by the student leaders.

The various principals told the student leaders that if they could keep order, there would be no police ordered into the schools. With one exception Friday, police remained outside the buildings, although city police and State Police patrolled previous trouble spots heavily.

Claim racism

In addition to the demands of recognition, respect and no police, the black students said they wanted an investigation of teachers who "show racist tendencies."

Throughout the day, black student leaders monitored the halls at William Penn and John Harris. Whenever they saw a group of three or more pupils congregating, they would ask them to "break it up. . .cool it. . go back to your classroom."

Some of the classrooms had only a handful of pupils, all black. John Harris normally is about evenly divided among white and black pupils. William Penn has a 1,100-member student body but less than half were in class Friday.

Police were inside the Camp Curtin Junior High building for a time Friday, but there were no reports of any violent incidents.

It was reported that the Harrisburg School Board left it up to the individual principals whether police would be stationed inside the buildings.

By gaining the concession to have police remain outside, the black students won one of their principal demands among a list of 10 submitted to the board Thursday night.

Eleven youths were arrested and 27 students suspended because of incidents at or near three of the four secondary schools Thursday.

Newest Berlin crisis: tea for too few

(C) 1969 New York Times News Service

BONN — President Nixon risks the possibility of losing more friends than he gains during his visit here next Wednesday because of a pellmell scramble by hundreds of Germans for invitations to his tea party for leading local "personalities."

Originally conceived as a means for Nixon to acquaint himself with a variety of nonofficial opinions on various political and social questions, the tea party is now shaping up as the fiercest high society contest since Queen Elizabeth II came here in 1966.

Telephones of senior officials in the United States Embassy in Bad Godesberg and the federal chancellery in Bonn have been ringing almost without pause since it was disclosed Thursday that the American President intended to meet a dozen or so Germans privately

Some highly-placed callers complained bitterly that they had been unjustifiably snubbed, according to German and American sources.

It was understood that Nixon's foreign policy advisor, Dr. Henry A. Kissinger, a native of Germany, had played a role in picking the guests.

The master list of those invited is in the hands of the U.S. Embassy's public affairs officer, Gordon A. Ewing, who is maintaining silence about the contents of the list and details of the party.

However, official sources said the following were among the "personalities" expected at the 6 p.m. tea with Nixon at the red brick Bad Godesberg embassy:

Nikolas Benckiser, the 65-year-old co-publisher of the Frankfurter Allgemeine Zeitung; Kurt Gscheidle, 44, president-designate of the German Trade Union Federation; Peter Corterier, 30, chairman of the Young Socialists; Marion Countess Donhoff, editor of Die Zeit, the Hamburg weekly, and Prof. Ralf Dahrendorf, sociologist and Free Democratic Party politician.

Those invited also have been sworn to secrecy about the event.

Ayub chooses not to run and Karachi crowds cheer

KARACHI, Pakistan (AP) — President Mohammed Ayub Khan, who has ruled Pakistan with an iron hand for 10 years, announced to a startled nation Friday he will not seek re-election next January.

Crowds surged into the streets of Karachi and other cities dancing and joyously acclaiming the president's decision, which came after nearly four months of bloody rioting against his regime.

"At all times and in all difficulties I have sought guidance from God Almighty," the 62-year-old president said in a nationwide radio broadcast. "It is in light of my (Moslem) faith that I have decided to announce today that I shall not be a candidate in the next elections. My decision is final and irrevocable."

The man who has been reviled by his political opponents spoke in a calm voice during the 12-minute broadcast.

While he startled his countrymen, Ayub's decision came as no surprise to informed observers in Karachi. They had speculated he would not seek re-election in the face of growing opposition to his rule.

In bowing out, however, Ayub issued a warning that if no agreement could be reached between him and the 10 opposition parties on constitutional reforms he would impose his own solution.

F&M picks air hostess as 1st co-ed

LANCASTER, Pa. (AP) — Franklin and Marshall, getting ready for its first women students next fall, Friday accepted its first co-ed, beauteous Annette Rineer, an airline Hostess.

Miss Rineer, 22, and blonde, admitted she was surprised when she became the first female accepted at the previously all-male school.

But she said she felt she could handle the situation. "I'm used to having a lot of men around me," she said. "I guess an airplane with a full load of men is not that much different from a male-dominated class room."

Miss Rineer will take an education leave of absence from Trans World Airline. She's a graduate of Lancaster Catholic High School, and studied at Millersville State College for two years before becoming a hostess.

Miss Rineer will major in Latin and she says she wants a degree, not a husband, from F&M.

"I just want to go back and get my degree, and that's all I want," she said.

Hong Kong channels becalmed

Silent treatment tried to free yachtsmen

(C) 1969 New York Times News Service

HONG KONG — Hong Kong authorities continued to work quietly through unofficial channels today for the release of 15 residents believed to be in Chinese hands. Communist China, meanwhile, maintained a complete silence about the incident.

The missing persons were on board three yachts which presumed to have been seized by armed junks while sailing to Macao on a holiday trip last weekend.

The seizure of the three yachts has once again made the people of this British crown colony conscious of their vulnerability to pinpricks and pressures from the unpredictable giant that is their neighbor.

China takes the position that Hong Kong is Chinese territory and that the British are here on sufferance. Peking said in 1963 that Hong Kong came within the scope of "unequal treaties left over by history, treaties which imperialists imposed on China." But it also said the question of Hong Kong, and of Macao, should be settled peacefully through negotiations and that pending a settlement the status quo should be maintained.

Because China claims a 12-mile territorial limit, Hong Kong is surrounded by Chinese land or water on all sides. Ships accordingly are dependent upon China's observance of the "right of innocent passage" to enter or leave Hong Kong.

This right was ignored by China last weekend when armed junks stopped the three Macao-bound yachts and towed them into a Chinese port. Six Americans were among the 15 aboard the yachts.

The incident sparked comments from those who thought the yachtsmen had been unwise and those who took a more hawkish position.

The South China Morning Post described the trip as "an ill-advised venture" and said it was "courting trouble to cross Chinese waters when Communist gunboats have repeatedly interfered with straying yachtsmen."

The China Mail, however, stated in an editorial: "The wait-and-see attitude still being followed by the government in respect to the 15 yachtsmen missing and believed held captive in China is a dangerous gamble."

It said this attitude indicated "weakness and grovelling" and added: "Fifteen months from now the quietly, quietly boys will be asking: why hasn't something been done to free those poor people?"

E. Bangor police search continues

EAST BANGOR — Future law enforcement needs for East Bangor Borough will be discussed next week at a joint meeting with councilmen and Upper Mt. Bethel Township supervisors.

East Bangor council is attempting to obtain an agreement whereby the borough could contract police protection with Upper Mt. Bethel Township.

John Pysher, chairman of the council's law committee, said Friday a meeting will be arranged for next week.

The council has obtained an emergency police protection provision from the township after the borough's two part-time policemen resigned.

Police Chief Vincent Meixsell and assistant chief James Abbott, son of East Bangor Mayor Edward G. Abbott resigned when council refused a wage increase. The policemen sought an increase from $2 to $2.60 per hour.

Since then, Mayor Abbott has criticized the council's action and said councilmen are being "Penny-wise and pound foolish."

The council has the authority to hire police, but Pysher explained that Mayor Abbott told councilmen to be aware of the fact that he can set the hours for policemen.

The two former part-time policemen are on the staff of the Wind Gap Police Department.

Indications are that East Bangor councilmen will clarify their actions during the public joint meeting for not granting the salary increase for the two policemen.

Mayor Abbott had said earlier that police service cost the borough an average of $110 monthly. The increase requested would have boosted expenditures by $33 monthly. The increase would mean an annual outlay of $1,716.

Up Milford Way

Ludwig saluted

By NORMAN B. LEHDE

MILFORD — The late Rudolph Ludwig was a farmer in Dingman Township who was always in the foreground of efforts to keep Pike County green.

His education in agriculture and his background as a successful fruit grower made him well aware of the forces of nature, how resources may be utilized and what can and will happen if the environment is neglected or abused. Although his own health was a serious problem in the closing years of his life, he never abated his efforts to protect and improve the local environment for the people of the county.

A pioneer in the establishment of a soil and water conservation district in Pike County, Rudy Ludwig was a fighter for the conservation cause. He and Mrs. Ludwig were familiar figures at meetings throughout the state Thanks largely to his efforts, Pike County was among the first counties in the commonwealth to have a complete soil survey to furnish a guide for land use.

The Pike County Soil and Water Conservation District will dedicate their Long Range Plan to the memory of Rudolph Ludwig. To those who knew him, there could be no other choice.

THE NEW president of Catholic University of America, located at Washington, D.C., is Dr. Clarence C. Walton. Dr. Walton, who was Dean of the School of General Studies at Columbia University, has a second home in Milford where he and his family spend as much time as possible.

ATTORNEY Thomas Kilroe of Milford heads the 1969 Heart Fund campaign in Pike County. Appeal letters are now being mailed out to residents.

Several of the local ladies will be competing in the Middletown Womens Bowling Association Tournament, which opens this weekend at the Port Jervis Lanes.

THE TOCKS Island Citizens Association has procured Prof. William H. Hewitt of the Center for Law enforcement and Correction at Pennsylvania State University, and Peter De Gelleke, Superintendent of the Delaware Water Gap National Recreation Area, as the speakers at their annual membership dinner on April 25.

The dinner, which will be held at Perona Farms, Andover, N.J., will come in for further discussion and planning when the directors of the association meet at the Pinchot Institute on Saturday morning, March 1.

A TOTAL of 20 civil action suits, most of them involving highway condemnation proceedings, are currently scheduled for the trial list in Pike County. Pre-trial hearings are scheduled to be held on Feb. 27 and March 6 and 7. Special efforts are expected to be made to work on settlements as a representative of the Pennsylvania Department of Highways is supposed to be in the county at that time to confer with the plaintiffs and attorneys involved.

The Milford Fire Department has ordered a new ambulance and is also in the process of purchasing a new fire truck.

The Delaware Valley faculty will hold a meeting at the Pinchot Institute on Monday. The meeting will serve as an opportunity to acquaint the teachers with the research and study material available at the Institute.

Frederick Nicholson

Nicholson's war heroism is rewarded

TOBYHANNA — Chief Warrant Officer Frederick C. Nicholson was awarded five oak leaf clusters to his previously-won Air Medal this week. The presentations were made at a special assembly of military personnel by Tobyhanna Army Depot Commanding Officer Col. Paul R. Poulin.

The awards were the result of his participating in 25 aerial missions over hostile territory in Vietnam during the period April 29, 1967 through March 1, 1968.

A 23-year career soldier, Nicholson has completed two tours of duty in Vietnam.

He arrived for duty at Tobyhanna Army Depot in May 1968 and serves as chief of air support branch, equipment management division.

He resides at Tobyhanna, R. D. 1, with his wife, the former Helen Jean Natali, and their three children, Natalie, 17, Charles, 15, and Nancy, 7.

Among his decorations are the Senior Aviators Badge, Master Parachutists Badge, Good Conduct Medal, and Vietnamese Service Medal.

Pen Argyl hosts orphan boy choir

PEN ARGYL — Plans have been completed to bring the Milton Hershey Glee Club to Pen Argyl, Thoburn E. Cassady, director of vocal music at the high school, announced.

The vocal music department is sponsoring this event as a public relations project and the public is invited to attend. There will be no admission charge for the event, which is to be held in the high school auditorium, on March 1 at 8 p.m.

The Glee Club will be completing a three day tour, during which they will appear in Pen Argyl, Bangor, Hellertown, and Bethlehem. Members of the Glee Club, along with their director, Virgil L. Alexander will be the guests of various families in Pen Argyl and surrounding communities.

With a stage versatility suggesting a Broadway production more than the usual concept of a "chorus", the Milton Hershey Glee Club presents a different style of entertainment that has won it a reputation as one of the East's popular performing groups.

Scorning the traditional use of risers, the Glee Club's presentation is unusual. Each song is individually staged, and a program may consist of everything from a marching imitation of a drum and bugle corps. to a hilarious interpretation of novelty songs. The singers are high school students ranging in age from 15 to 18, and hail from Milton Hershey School in Hershey, a private school for orphan boys founded by the late Milton S. Hershey.

The Glee club makes about 50 appearances a year appearing for a large variety of occasions. In 1960, former President Eisenhower invited the group to sing at the opening session of the White House Conference on Children and Youth. They also shared billing with Bob Hope at the Governor's Convention in 1962. They record for RCA, and regularly embark on extended tours throughout Pennsylvania and nearby states.

Clergy plays important role

Despair big push toward use of narcotics

(EDITOR'S NOTE—This is the eighth in a series of articles dealing with the seriousness of the narcotics problem in Monroe County. The reports of law, medical and ministerial officials will cover the past, present and future of drug traffic in the area).

By JAMES RILEY
Pocono Record Editor

STROUDSBURG — The clergy's role in the fight against the peril of narcotics is one of compassion, understanding and assistance. It is also one of education.

Rev. William C. Leopold links alcohol, gambling and larceny with narcotics as the four greatest evils in the world today. Each in turn is coupled with despair, by the pastor of St. John's Lutheran Church, in Stroudsburg.

The former visiting chaplin at Graterford State Penitentiary views being discontent as normal among the human race. But, the distance between discontent and despair, which is abnormal, is one short step, according to Rev. Leopold.

During the opening sermon for the Lenten season, St. John's pastor, said, "Modern man lives constantly on the edge of discontent. This discontent drives us forward to new goals, but also slices off large parts of our happiness."

"Man is discontent and when he fails to become discontent is when his forward motion stops, as does that of his community," Rev. Leopold said. "However, when an individual slips into the realm of despair is when he often becomes the slave of alcohol and narcotics.

Rev. Leopold also took a dim view of tranquilizers and their escalated use. "In my mind there is a definite theological question involved in the use of tranquilizers. It gives an individual more crutches on which to lean and indicates that there is something lacking in the total person," the pastor, who came to Monroe County in 1962, related.

Rev. Leopold revealed that he's had very little actual experience with narcotics and people using narcotics. "At Graterford there was the highest degree of security carried out against the narcotics user and the possible smuggling of drugs into the prison," the minister explained.

"The role of the parish clergy is that of referral. We are available and willing to assist whenever needed and whenever notified," Rev. Leopold explained.

St. John's pastor said that he has conferred with law enforcing authorities on a number of occasions during his six years in the community, but not about narcotics.

However, Rev. Leopold pointed out that drug addiction is now rivaling alcohol as the biggest escape route from reality. However, he listed gambling as the "real bad guy" in the story of life. Rev. Leopold is of the opinion that gambling supplies the climate for both alcohol and narcotics.

What kind of a person falls victim to narcotics addiction?

Rev. Leopold said that it is the person who is bored, dissatisified with himself, one who shows a hostility to life and society who falls into the black pit of despair.

"Using narcotics enables the person involved to escape from reality. It's a pleasing form of slow suicide," Rev. Leopold said.

The Lutheran clergyman also pointed out that both alcohol and narcotics are plentiful and highly used in the ghettos of large cities. "Actually alcohol and narcotics go together like twins in the ghetto areas," Rev. Leopold added.

Rev. Leopold said that he has not come across one narcotics case in his parish, but indicated that teenagers may try drugs for one of two reasons, namely the thrills involved and despair.

"The upper middle class teen would probably try narcotics for thrills, while the poor class use of narcotics would stem from despair.

Rev. Leopold further explained that children of broken families are more easily drawn into the use of narcotics than is the youngster who has both a father and mother at home.

"A teenager who is turned off, drawn up tight and distraught has already established a short cut to narcotics," the pastor of St. John's Church explained.

Vandalism appearing again

Vandalism is lifting its ugly head once again in various sections of Monroe County.

Area law enforcing officers should act immediately and with all the weapons at their disposal to curtail this new upheaval of lawlessness.

It has been less than a year since one of the biggest outbreaks of vandalism in Monroe County's history was solved, after a huge financial loss in property damage and much mental anguish in Stroud Township.

Barrett Township is now feeling the brunt of vandals who are concentrating on breaking lights, particularly those used to illuminate streets.

Last week in Stroud Township several cars and street signs were sprayed with paint, some featuring anti-semitic abuses.

There have been other acts of violence reported from other sections of Monroe County, each containing the potential spark to ignite the type of wave that could bring about serious trouble.

Early action on the part of the various municipalities involved and their law enforcing bodies could bring about a hasty end to what could be an explosive situation.

Another source of irritation that should be investigated by policing organizations is the mounting dumping of debris along streets and roadways of the area.

This community is the heart of the Pocono Mountains and its location indicates beauty and the presence of some of the biggest and best resorts in the east.

However, debris strewn roadways will quickly erase the appearance of beauty and in the future could damage this locality's reputation as a resort center.

Now is the time to act and the action should include school authorities and area residents. After all, our police forces are only as good as the support we give them.

Coin Corner

Money of New Orleans

By ROBERT SVENSSON

In our last column, we gave a little of the historic lore of New Orleans. The subject is so vast, books could be written to cover it. Briefly, here are some more facts of interest to coin collectors.

Money, or the lack of it, as historians know, was one fo the decisvie blows that brought down the Confederacy. Despite the fact that the Confederates took over the U.S. mint at New Orleans, they were unable to use the facility effectively. It takes metal to make coins and the Confederacy had none.

Paper money, therefore, was the temporary answer. Everyone knows the story of Confederate money, so it will not be dwelled upon here.

Dixie dollars

What most people do not know was that perfectly good paper money was issued in New Orleans before the Civil War, long before, as early as 1833. There bank notes issued by the Citizens Bank of Louisiana.

It was one of this bank's denominations that gave the world the word "Dixie," the rallying cry of the Civil War!

The banknote that started Dixie on the road to fame was first issued by this bank in 1845. The denomination was $10. The French word for 10 is "Dix," and the denomination was printed on the note in both English and French.

The words "I wish I was in Dixie, Hooray" simply described the wish of songwriter Dan D. Emmett, to be in the land of the "Dixies" — which was Louisiana, the land of $10 bills, worth 100 cents on the dollar. Most other money circulating in New Orleans was heavily discounted.

Fascinating possibilities

(C) 1969 New York Times News Service

NEW YORK — The other day, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts, 37, disclosed in Look Magazine that he didn't seek the presidency last year because he was too young, too inexperienced and too vulnerable and a few days later, Sen. John J. Williams of Delaware, 66, said he wasn't going to run for re-election next year because he was too old.

This astonishing outbreak of candor raises some fascinating possibilities. What if this sort of thing became infectious; and everybody began speaking the truth in public about his won weaknesses?

Sen. Jabob J. Javits of New York: "I talk too much. I don't know what's the matter with me, but I don't seem to be able to stop blowing off all the time about almost everything. On the advice of my wife, I've decided to shut up for a whole week, beginning right now."

J. Edgar Hoover: "I've been around the Federal Bureau of Investigation far too long, and since no president of either party seems to have the courage to fire me, I quit!"

Questions people

Vice President Spiro Agnew: "Now that I see the terrible responsibilities of this job, I can't help wondering whether the people who picked me really did have very good judgment."

Lt. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey: "I have been reading all those people who say I have been running the selective service system for too long, and I have reached the conclusion that they are absolutely right. Accordingly . . ."

Sen. Everett McKinley Dirksen: "After over a quarter of a century in the Senate, and a great deal of careful self-examination, I've decided I ham it up too much."

President Richard M. Nixon: "Why didn't somebody tell me everything was so much more complicated than I thought?"

Billy Graham: "After long and prayerful meditation, I sometimes think I am somewhat lacking in Christian charity."

President Lyndon B. Johnson: "I am beginning to wonder whether I was always right in all my judgments about Vietnam."

Dean Rusk: "Me too."

Speaker John W. McCormack of Massachusetts: "I have to admit that there is something in Senator Williams's suggestion that members of the house should be forced to retire at 68, but I sure am glad he didn't have that splendid idea 10 years ago."

Be careful

Secretary of Defense Melvin Laird: "I'd better be careful about arguing for that antiballistic missle system. It could be our Bay of Pigs.

Mayor John Lindsay of New York: "How did I ever get into this mess, anyway?"

George Wallace of Alabama: "Sometimes I wonder how I ever got so far on so little."

General De Gaulle: "The British are against me. The Dutch and the Belgians are against me. The Italians are against me. The Germans are against me, and even the French are beginning to wonder about me. (Mon Dieu),) what am I thinking: could I possibly be wrong?"

Prime Minister Harold Wilson: "Chuch it, old boy. They're on to you!"

Harvard and Radcliffe: "We really should have married long ago."

Senator Edward Kennedy: "And yet, I might have made it after all."

Senator Williams: "Of course, at 67, I could change my mind."

Hubert Horatio Humphrey: "It sure is nice to be home, but. . but if only. . ."

PARIS — From the viewpoint of Gaullist France NATO no longer exists and therefore is not really a subject for discussion with President Richard Nixon.

As General Charles DeGaulle sees things, NATO is not the same as the North Atlantic Alliance. For him, NATO is an organization dominated by the United States, a structure into which Washington intergrates all other members.

The alliance, however, is to his meticulously precise way of thinking a declaration of principle. All signatory states would join in mutual defense should one be attacked — for so long as the treaty remains valid.

Technically, signatories can start legally denouncing the treaty this year. De Gaulle, nevertheless, has no desire to do so — at least in 1969. He feels there must first be significant improvement in East-West relationships.

Therefore the alliance still exists for France even if the organization is dead and cannot be revived by any conceivable legerdemain. Furthermore, although France accepts continued responsibilities to help other allies in the highly unlikely event they might be attacked — and also benefits from the knowledge it would recieve NATO support — De Gaulle clearly does not see any way of coordinating french military planning with that of the alliance or the United States, Its mainstay.

Possibility of attack

France's post-NATO strategic concept is based upon the mistrustful theorem of tous azimuts (all points of the compass) and therefore theoretically assumes the possibility of attack from the west and well as the east, sole source of NATO's worries. This clearly precludes even theoretical joint planning with NATO — A possibility excluded anyway because of De Gaulle's abhorrence for anything even hinting to him at acceptance of American "hegemony."

It prevents, additionally, the discussion of joint allocation of nuclear targets for the improbable event of war. Finally, there is no longer the faintest interest here in resurrecting the General's own idea of a three-power global strategy planning committee as suggested by him in 1958 to President Dwight D. Eisenhower. Paris holds this is now neither feasible or desirable.

France enjoys obvious freedom to maneuver because of NATO's protection. That remains for the inescapable reason of geography (This country has land frontiers with four NATO members) and because France is still a treaty signatory even though out of the military organization. But, while committed to its North Atlantic obligations, Paris now opposes military blocs.

Although associated with — if not a full participant in — the Western Bloc, Paris tends to equate it with the Eastern Bloc. But, while viewing its own dislike of full commitment — for fear of hegemony — Paris in no sense considers itself neutralist or neutral. France would not, for example, contemplate joining in any conference with such countries as India, Yugoslavia or the United Arab Republic.

Complex reasoning

Complex reasoning lies at the root of De Gaulle's political philosophy. He feels it essential for the French people to think always of France, which becomes almost a mystical token of nationhood, and that they cannot do this if they diminish their personal sense of independence. Psychologically, one might say, the general insists his countrymen stand unaided on their own feet.

Thus, sheltered by the Western Alliance from dangers of any supra-red exposure to the East, DeGaulle works as what he fancies to be, a non-neutral to neutralize the European arena. This involves not only the effort to reduce non-European troop concentrations on the continent, but to extrude from the Mediterranean large U. S. and smaller Soviet fleets permanently based there, once detente replaces tension.

The general apparently feels these two naval concentrations militate against peace, not for it.

Don MacLean

Bad time to visit in Peru

LIMA — Why is it I always seem to hit countries just as they go to war against the United States? I don't know whether I'm a tourist here or a hostage. "Yankee Go Home" signs are bad enough, but when the signs start saying "Yankee, Tommorrow You Die," I'm evacuating!

When I arrived in this bedraggled little nation, it was undecided whether to steal an American oil company outright or just "fine" it for all of its profits since the year one. Now it is machine-gunning our fishing boats on the high seas. If things keep on like this there's going to be trouble.

The other day a bunch of American reporters was gathered in a Peruvian government building to hear another American give a speech about South American economic matters. The lecturer had been flown all the way down from New York to give his speech. Unfortunately, he wasn't able to because Peru's El Presidente, or Mafioso, or whatever he calls himself, elbowed the speaker aside to give us a 45-minute attack against American oil interests and U.S. foreign policy.

After that there seemed no point in the American lecturer continuing, so the unhappy gentleman simply flew home. And all I can say is: "Roses are red, violets are blue, something is rotten and I think it's Peru."

A cartoon in an Argentine newspaper gently (very gently) kids the military men who are in control of the country. Two women are talking about fashion and one of them is wearing military boots.

She said, "You'd better buy a pair, they're going to be 'in' for a long time."

Argentine film censors don't fool around. If an imported movie has a scene they consider immoral, they don't just snip the scene — they ban the whole movie.

There's no public outcry over these methods; people seem to accept censorship as a fact of life.

Torture — Oriental style

Allen - Goldsmith Report

Cost of weapons to cause furor

John A. Goldsmith

WASHINGTON — Heavy cost overruns, producing a jet escalation in weapon costs, are worrying Pentagon budget officers. All the services are involved. Many, if not most, of their weapons systems are affected.

Congress will get the bad news soon. House and Senate Armed Services Committee will start hearings on the annual defense procurement bills as soon as President Richard Nixon recommends adjustments in the Johnson defense budget — probably in early March.

With the Anti-Ballistic-Missile system (ABM) under heavy congressional fire and the Pueblo seizure scheduled for intensive scrutiny in the House and Senate, some Pentagon officials are saying dryly that they could have done without a cost-overrun controversy this year.

So far, published reports on cost escalations have dealt mostly with the giant C5A cargo plane. In a series of hearings, the House-Senate Economic Committee, made a horrible example of C5A costs.

According to the committee's data, the $3.1 billion cost estimate for the first 120 of the Lockheed C5As has been run up to $5.1 billion. That two billion-dollar increase may be something of a record.

Comparable percentage increases are anticipated, however, for smaller contract dealing with less expensive weapons. Inflated production costs and additional performance requirements ordered by the services are said to contribute to overrun initial estimates.

Weapons experts claim that the increased costs do not, in themselves, mean the taxpayer is getting a bad bargain. They say the C5A, with all its additional costs will carry cargo at a cheaper per-ton-mile cost than present cargo planes can achieve.

The experts know, however, that such cost increases will provoke loud congressional demands for improved procurement procedures.

Package procurement

The C5A is being purchased by the Air Force under a concept called package procurement. Instead of awarding a reasearch and development contract and following up with procurement contracts, the package arrangement combines development and production.

Incentives for keeping costs down are incorporated in such package contracts, but the contracts also provide a formula for periodic repricing as production continues. That can have the effect of greatly inflating costs, especially if initial price estimates were too low.

The C5A experience will assure close congressional attention to other package procurement arrangements. The Short Attack Missile (SRAM), is being produced for the Air Force under the package plan. So is the Army's heavily armed Cheyenne fire-support helicopter.

However, rapid cost escalation has not been confined to package procurement or to purchases of planes and missiles. Sharp price increases have been apparent for some time in the Navy's program for building ships and submarines.

The 1967 cost estimate for a nuclear powered aircraft carrier was $427 million, but the price had hit $537 million last summer. Nuclear attack submarines, priced at $71.6 million each two years ago, are now upwards of $81.3 million, and the $135 million 1967 price for a guided missile Frigate has risen to $180 million.

The anticipated furor over cost escalation and weapon price overruns has already altered the role of one of the most influential subcommittee.

Two kickers move east for Paramus open

NEW YORK, N.Y. — The nation's leading kickers will have an opportunity to add mightily to their bank accounts this week.

The winner of the $75,000 Cougar PGA Open, the finals of which will be televised live and in color from Paramus, N.J., on ABC-TV's "Professional Bowlers Tour" Saturday, Feb. 22 (3:30-5 p.m., EST), will collect $10,000.

ABC sportscaster Chris Schenkel and bowling great Billy Welu, now in his sixth season as color commentator on "Professional Bowlers Tour," are the reporters from the Paramus Bowl.

One bowler has already crashed in on ABC Sports' offer of $10,000 for a perfect game this year. Johnny Guenther registered a flawless performance in a recent live telecast from San Jose, Calif.

The bowler finishing in second place in the Cougar Open will be consoled by prize money of $6,000 and the use of a Cougar for one year.

The Cougar PGA Open is the first Eastern appearance of the year for the bowling tour.

Don Glover pocketed $8,000 for winning the Bonnie PGA Open in Kansas City last Saturday. The 22-year-old left-hander defeated Don Johnson, 215-212, in the title game after a thrilling semi-final match that ended in a necessitating a special two-frame rolloff.

Billy Hardwick, who made the televised finals for three consecutive weeks, rolled three clutch strikes in the tenth frame to tie Glover and force the rolloff. Glover, however, opened with two strikes in the overtime session and locked Hardwick out of the final game.

Hardwick opened the day's bowling with a resounding 277-257 victory over Nelson Burton, Jr., and eliminated Dave Soutar, 223-214.

Skating championship set for 90 minute spot

NEW YORK, N.Y. — The crowning of a new king and queen of figure skating will be televised Saturday, March 1 when the entire 90 minutes of "ABC's Wide World of Sports" (5 p.m.) will be devoted to coverage of the World Figure Skating Championships in Colorado Springs, Colo.

Austrian Emmerich Danzer and America's Jane 1968 Winter Olympic gold medalist Peggy Fleming both retired from amateur skating after winning the 1968 World titles. American youngsters are given an excellent chance of taking both honors this time.

Tim Wood and Janet Lynn, recent winners at the National and North American Championships (seen on "Wide World", Feb. 8 and 15, respectively), are the leading candidates for the U.S.

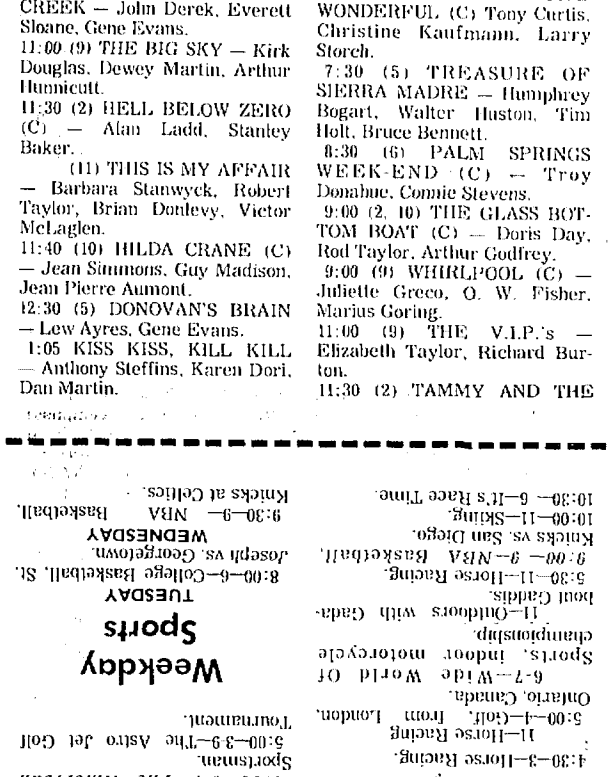
ABC's Chris Schenkel, and Dick Button, twice U.S. Olympic figure skating gold medal winner, are the reporters on the coverage.

Leafs, Hawks meet Saturday

NEW YORK, N.Y. — The high-scoring Chicago Black Hawks meet the Toronto Maple Leafs at Maple Leaf Gardens, Toronto, in a National Hockey League game to be broadcast live and in color on the CBS Television Network Sunday, March 2, 2:30-5:00 p.m., EST.

Dan Kelly calls the play by play action and Bill Mazer provides the color commentary.

All alone



Luther Heggs (Don Knotts) is on his first assignment as a reporter, covering a "haunted house," in the comedy-mystery "The Ghost and Mr. Chicken" on the NBC Television Network's "NBC Monday Night at the Movies" at 9 p.m.

'Untamed World' narrator

Philip Carey is narrator of the NBC Television Network's "Untamed World" color series, Saturdays at 12:30 p.m. The recently launched series, each week, offers a study of a different facet of the lives of wild animals.

Andy Williams set for second 'special'

NEW YORK, N. Y. — The second Andy Williams special of the season — "Andy's Love Concert" — will be taped during during a live concert in the multi-million-dollar Los Angeles Music Center's Mark Taper Forum for colorcast on the NBC Television Network Wednesday, March 19 (10-11 p.m. NYT, preempting "The Outsider").

The special will be under the full sponsorship of Menley and James Laboratories (through Wells, Rich, Greene Inc.) for its line of Love cosmetics.

Andy's guests will include vocalist Jose Feliciano, Scottish folk singer Donovan, Ike and Tina Turner's Revue, and special guest stars Tom and Dick Smothers.

The show will be packaged by Barnaby Productions Inc., in association with the NBC Television Network, with Jack Good as producer and Art Fisher as director. Writers are Chris Beard, Bob Einstein and Larry Murray.

Andy's special will immediately follow a Bob Hope special on NBC-TV the same evening. This is the second of three specials in which Williams will star during the season. His first, "The Andy Williams Christmas Show" was colorcast on NBC-TV Dec. 19, 1968.

Williams recently signed a long-term agreement with NBC-TV to star in a new full-hour weekly musical-variety series to premiere on the network during the 1969-70 season. His previous NBC-TV series earned Emmy Awards for "outstanding achievement in variety" in 1965, 1966 and 1967.

CBS-TV to cover 'Flight of Apollo 9'

NEW YORK, N.Y. — "The Flight of Apollo 9," the first manned test of the Lunar Module scheduled to carry American astronauts to the moon's surface later this year, will be covered in a series of 17 CBS News Special Reports and Progress Reports — highlighted by the scheduled Friday, Feb. 28 launch-day coverage from 10:00 to 11:30 a.m. — to be broadcast live and in color on CBS Television.

CBS News Correspondent Walter Cronkite will anchor the lift-off coverage at the John F. Kennedy Space Center, Merritt Island, Fla.

A 15-minute preview of "The Flight of Apollo 9" will be broadcast Thursday at 8:45 p.m.

Joining Cronkite in the launch-day coverage will be correspondents Steve Rowan at Grumman Aircraft Engineering Corp.; Bill Stout at North American Rockwell at Downey, Calif.; Nelson Benton at NASA Mission Control in Houston, Tex., and David Schoumacher, in New York. Meteorologist Gordon Barnes at the CBS News Space Center in New York will provide weather analysis.

Scheduled to lift off at 11 a.m., Apollo 9, powered by the huge Saturn V rocket, will carry astronauts James McDivitt, David Scott and Russell "Rusty" Schweickart on a 10-day mission in a 118-mile orbit of the earth.

Approximately three hours into the flight, the astronauts will separate the Command Service Module (CSM) from the SIV-B third stage of the Saturn V, turn the CSM around in orbit and dock with the Lunar Module (LM), pulling it out of the jettisoned SIV-B. The CSM will then be turned around and will orbit the earth docked with the LM. Live color coverage of the docking maneuver is scheduled to be broadcast from 1:45 to 1:53 p.m.

Progress Reports on the mission will be broadcast that night at approximately 11 p.m., and on Saturday, March 1 from 3:55 to 4 p.m., and at approximately 11 p.m.

Sunday, March 2, McDivitt and Schweickart will enter the Lunar Module to check out the systems and equipment and test-fire the LM's engines. The coverage, to be broadcast from 8:30 to 10 a.m., will include the first use of the new seven-and-one-half pound Westinghouse television camera that will be used on the upcoming lunar landing missions. Live television pictures of the orbiting spacecrafts will be transmitted back to earth. Sunday, a five-minute Special Report, 12:55 to 1 p.m. will be broadcast when the Lunar Module's engines are fired for the first time.

Monday, March 3, Schweickart will leave the spacecraft for a walk in space, the first such exercise by an American astronaut since Gemini 12 in November 1966. Special Reports on his Extra-Vehicular Activity will be broadcast from noon to 12:24 p.m., and from 1 to 1:05 p.m., live and in color on the network.

During Schweickart's walk in space, he will mount the television camera on the outside of the LM. Live television pictures of his walk in space and of the orbiting spacecrafts will be transmitted back to earth as part of a Special Report to be broadcast from 2:00 to 2:35 p.m., Cronkite, in New York, will anchor all three broadcasts.

The following day, Tuesday, March 4, the LM, bearing McDivitt and Schweickart, will separate from the CSM, piloted by Scott. The separation of the vehicles, which places the LM on its own for the first time in manned flight, will be covered on a Special Report to be broadcast from 7:30 to 7:55 a.m.

After undocking, the CSM and LM will fly in separate orbits for approximately five hours before entering the stage of the mission in which they undertake a rendezvous and docking maneuver. The start of the rendezvous will be covered on a Progress Report to be broadcast from 1 to 1:05 p.m., and the actual rendezvous and docking of the CSM and LM will be covered on a Special Report from 1:30 to 2:10 p.m.

Once the docking has been completed, McDivitt and Schweickart will rejoin Scott in the Apollo 9 capsule.

Just Between Us—

By Bobby Westbrook

The women who shared the platform at the Altar and Rosary dialogue the other night also shared something else: butterflies and a lot of floor-walking in their preparation for the program.

Why is it, I wonder, that it's so hard for us to reveal our better impulses and so easy to share the baser ones? We'll share embarassing experiences with total strangers, but hide our good deeds as if they were something of which to be ashamed.

We chatter like magpies about inconsequentials and never mention the things that mean the most. Maybe because we're afraid of appearing hypocritical; or maybe because we're just afraid: of tempting fate, of being hurt, of discovering the chasm between what we believe and what we do.

Anyway, the soul-searching and floor-walking paid off in a program worth listening to. The variety and scope of programs offered by local organizations never cease to amaze me — and sometimes amuse me.

When I think of the Auments, for instance, being stuck with a three-ton rock collection when they had to move from South Dakota, other people's moving problems seem pretty minor. Although I suppose Marion Stofflet, preparing to move into Peg Heller Smoaks' former home, wouldn't agree.

Besides learning about lapidarian activities, local women had a chance to learn more about railroads, baskets, jazz and jamborees. Also to exchange snide comments about what a big snow "flurry" this turned out to be.

Anniversaries in West End

KRESGEVILLE — Mr. and Mrs. William Kreimoyer of Kresgeville celebrated their 51st wedding anniversary on Feb. 19.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Miller celebrated their 44th wedding anniversary on Feb. 14.

Mr. Kreimoyer is a Bethlehem Steel Co. retiree and Mr. Miller has retired from New Jersey Zinc Co. of Palmerton.

Concern, action unite three faiths in single discussion

STROUDSBURG — The word "ecumenical" took on new meaning as Catholic, Protestant and Jewish women gave personal witness to their faith during a panel discussion at the meeting of the Altar and Rosary Society of St. Luke's and St. Matthew's Catholic Church on a snowy night this week.

Four women took part in the program, moderated by Rev. Robert Gibson, each with a different approach but all ending up at the same basic conclusion: the Fatherhood of God, the brotherhood of man, and the necessity to translate convictions into action.

For Margaret Wells, a member of the Stroudsburg Presbyterian Church, it was a matter of values: "A loving awareness directed toward God and toward his children, particularly those who never have had a chance".

"Concern and action are inseparable," she said, "and in this there can be no religious barrier in the Kingdom of Heaven. But before we can overcome poverty of the spirit, we must also work with social ills", she said.

She described the work of the Volunteer Services of Church Women United with its emphasis on one concerned person working with one family to break the cycle of hopelessness, in which women of many denominations have found that everyone has something to give.

Marie Brown of St. Luke's Roman Catholic Church spoke of a firmer faith growing from an examination of the doubts that often arise. The recent changes in liturgy and in procedure in the Catholic Church, which have upset many of the older worshipers, have also drawn the layman into a more active role, she pointed out, while the doctrine has remained unchanged.

Among other changes she noted: "I can remember what it was like to be a member of a minority group. It wasn't easy. In my lifetime I have seen a greater love flowing between people. Why, it would be difficult to imagine an ecumenical panel like this even a few years ago."

As a teacher she expressed confidence that the young people who seem to be going so far out would return in time to the fold, and stressed the importance of letting them know "that we want to understand and are willing to listen".

Dolores Cohen of the Temple Israel devoted her time to answering some of the questions which Christians ask, showing the Torah, the first five books of the Bible from creation to the death of Moses in which the doctrine of one God and the laws and liturgy are established.

As God's chosen people, the Jews were the recipient of His revelations to accept the disciplines and hardships as their part of the covenant. Non-Jews are accepted as God's children and Jews find stimulation in other faiths which stress different aspects such as social justice, freedom of conscious, or mysticism.

Jesus, to the Jew, is regarded as a great teacher, with a surpassing love of man, keen insight into God's ways and powerful ethics in the Jewish tradition. They reject the teachings of Paul such as the doctrine of original sin and eternal damnation for non-believers.

"Mitzvah", the meritorious act of special virtue, and charity, helping someone to help himself, are central commitments, Mrs. Cohen said.

Briefly and in poetic terms, Alice Patterson of the East Stroudsburg United Methodist Church, summed up her commitment of love. "Prejudice is a disease of the mind," she said in her litany of love for all people including "those I agree with and those I argue with".

Mrs. Patterson also stressed her belief that "no man is so poor that he has nothing worth giving".

Mrs. Giovanni Delessio presided at the meeting held in the auditorium of St. Matthew's in East Stroudsburg.

Announcements were made of the World Day of Prayer Service to be held March 7 at 1:30 p.m. in the East Stroudsburg Methodist Church; of the dance to be held Saturday, March 15, with a midnight buffet to which Mrs. John Powell and Mrs. Joseph Harrison have tickets.

Also announced was a Deanery Mass for the late Rev. Msgr. McHugh to be held March 25 at 6 p.m. at St. Mary of the Mount Church in Mount Pocono.

Mrs. Arthur Henning was named chairman of the nominating committee which includes Mrs. James Shamp and Mrs. Anthony Farda.

Mrs. Walter Adelmann and Mrs. Howard Gunn were in charge of the Bible reading marking the beginning of Lent.

Msgr. Thomas Cawley emphasized that while 3,000 people had been given the holy ashes on Ash Wednesday, the ashes were only tokens of the season when the individual emphasis was on what one could do, not merely on what to do without.

The tea table was set with a statue of the Sacred Heart of Jesus.

Also serving as hostesses were Mrs. Sal Pappalardo and Mrs. Scott Crowe.

Case of vanishing trains subject of DAR program

STROUDSBURG — Railroads may be a thing of the past by 1973, with sections retained for scenic rides for tourists unless the Federal Government provides subsidies as they do for seaports, airports and roads.

This was the warning of Dr. James Henwood in his talk on "Railroads: Past, Present, and Future" at the meeting of the Jacob Stroud Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution at the Stroud Community House this week.

Railroads have a great potential, he said, especially in the realm of commuter trains which are badly needed in urban areas because of highway conjestion. Yet, because most railroad revenue is derived from freight, many railroads have eliminated dining cars and sleepers from long distance runs as too costly and commuter lines are run at a deficit.

Railroad management is not backward but the cost of modernization is great. In spite of this since 1950 new flat cars, trailer trucks and piggy-back cars have improved service as has consolidation of yards.

Adding to the woes of the railroads as a private enterprise are both time and labor cost factors, he said. A jet plane from Chicago to Denver takes two hours with labor cost of $391. The same trip by railroad takes 18 hours with a labor cost of $2,288.

Dr. Henwood is associate professor of history at East Stroudsburg State College. He was introduced by Mrs. Paul Fellencer, first vice regent.

Mrs. Horace Fellencer gave the invocation and the national defense report was read by Mrs. Ernest Shultz.

The tea table was decorated for Washington's Birthday with a centerpoece of red, white and blue flowers in an eagle ceramic vase surrounded by miniature American flags. Mrs. W. C. G. Peterson poured.

Hostesses were Mrs. Charles Frank, Mrs. Peterson, Mrs. J. Albert Groner and Miss Marguerite Allen.

Stroud Club's heart drive; see rocks turn to jewels

STROUDSBURG — Members of the Stroud Community Woman's Club, busy on the Heart Fund Drive in the Stroudsburgs, were urged to complete the door-to-door canvass as soon as possible so that a complete report can be made by the end of the month.

Mrs. Thelma Mesko, president, gave the report in the absence of the chairman, Mrs. Dorothy Kruse, who is ill.

Also announced at the meeting held at the YMCA was the fashion show for the benefit of the Heart Fund to be held at the Holiday Inn on March 11 at 8 p.m. Mrs. Lois Payne, chairman, will be assisted by Mrs. Esther Musselman of the Stroud Club.

Speakers at the meeting were Chet and Mildred Aument of Minisink Hills, who described with humor their initiation as lapidarians.

While living in North Dakota, they became interested in the rock collection of a neighbor and started their own collecting in an area with many varieties. Within four months, they had picked up more than three tons of dense stones.

That's when they had to move. From the vast collection, they were forced to choose only the best. They purchased a polishing and cutting machine, and began their absorbing hobby of turning the stones into jewelry. The semi-precious stones are cut and polished and then mounted in silver settings.

They have collected stones from many states and Canada, but encouraged members by pointing out that a simple stone found in a driveway can be made into an interesting piece of jewelry.

They displayed many of their creations including bracelets, rings, pins and pendants of opal, jade and other minerals.

They announced that a club is being formed for persons interested in becoming lapidarians, and volunteered further information about the club to anyone who called them.

At the business meetings, preliminary plans were announced for the coming art show. The club will also participate in selling tickets for the Wyckoff Fashion Show to be held April 22 with tickets available from Mrs. Mesko.

Rosalie Deus was named chairman of the nominating committee which includes Marilyn Block and Hildagard Kimmins. They will report at the March meeting.

Refreshments were served on a red felt tablecloth with a centerpiece of pink roses mixed with long pink tapers. Mrs. Lorraine Albertson, Mrs. Louise Hudak, Barbara Amitage, Hilda Brown, Loree Smith and Doris Kegley were members of the committee.

BANGOR — Member clubs of the Monroe County Federation of Women's Clubs are invited to send entries to the Northeast District contest in sewing and art to be held in Bangor Area High School on March 8.

Judges in the sewing contest will be Mrs. William P. Darrow, vice president in charge of pattern selection for Spadea Pattern Co.; Mrs. Alistair Guthrie, fashion coordinator and sewing editor for the company; and Miss Susan Mohr, Warren County Home Economist.

Judges in the art category will be Robert Doney, assistant professor of art at Northampton County Community College, and Wilmer Behler, art director at Lehigh Lithographing who also teaches at Northampton County Community College.

The program will begin at 10:30 a.m. Mrs. Gavdaskey of Easton will speak on "Hats and Fashion" and a chorus of the Bangor Senior Woman's Club will sing.

Club presidents of the local federation are urged to have members send in reservations as soon as possible to Mrs. Paul Cooper, Box 223, Bangor. Art Entries need not have the artists present but sewers are asked to model their ensembles.

Mine picked as dump

HARRISBURG (AP) — A strip mine near Oneida and Sheppton in Schuylkill County was pinpointed Thursday as an ideal site for a pilot trash dumping project.

State mines Secretary H. Beecher Charmbury said the abandoned stripping "west of Sheppton and west of Pennsylvania 924" was ideal because geologically it had only one water outlet which would allow close observation of possible pollution from trash.

Charmbury said he was demanding such a pilot project before his department would give approval to large scale dumping of Philadelphia trash in upstate strippings.

Eastern Land Reclamation Co has a four-year contract from the City of Philadelphia to process, bale and dispose of Philadelphia refuse in upstate pits.

Currently, the Philadelphia project is under study by a Senate investigating committee and Rep. Fraklin H. Kury, D-Northumberland, has proposed a bill to provide special controls over it.

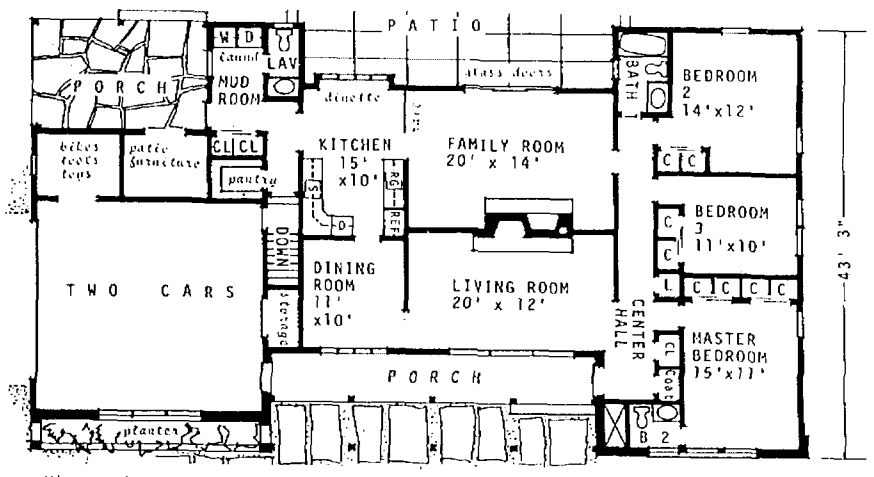
Ranch features bedroom wings

H-shaped home provides outside access

Brick and stone predominate in the exterior of this three-bedroom ranch, which has a mixture of contemporary and traditional styling. Covered front porch stretches 30 feet between the bedroom wing and the garage, with a door at either end.

View of family room from the kitchen-dinette. Brick fireplace at right side of family room is opposite sliding glass doors leading to the patio at the rear of the house.



Floor plans—Compactness is the keynote of this arrangement, with no lost space anywhere. Note how the spaces at the top and bottom of the H are occupied by a patio and a porch, with the area behind garage packed with storage compartments, a mudroom-laundry, lavatory and porch.

By ANDY LANG

The indentations of the front porch and rear patio, with garage and bedroom wings, give this home a general H shape.

And while it has the appearance of a big H (the straight-lined roof adds to this impression), it actually is a moderate-sized house, with less than 1650 square feet of habitable area.

Architect Lester Cohen has utilized all available space to include a measure of indoor-outdoor living without requiring additional property.

Besides the front porch and rear patio, there is a flagstoned porch at the rear left, nestled behind the garage within the over-all dimensions of the structure.

This outdoorsy character, so prevalent in larger homes with spacious expansions of property, is getting more and more attention from builders of modest houses in line with the demands of prospective purchasers.

The central chimney provides fireplaces for both the living room and the family room. The living room, at the front of the house, is just off the entrance hall.

Beyond it is the dining room. In the same alignment, at the rear of the house, are the family room and the kitchen, the latter with a dinette area looking out on the patio.

Sliding glass doors lead to that patio from the family room. Mother thus can keep an eye on patio play by the children from either the kitchen or family room.

The mudroom adjoining the kitchen has a laundry alcove, lavatory, service closets and a pantry. Just off it are an outside porch, an entrance to the two-car garage and a stairway to the basement.

The garage has two separate storage areas ideal for bikes, tools, toys, etc. Because of these extras in the area of the kitchen, the room seems larger than its dimensions of 15 feet by 10 feet. Note, too, that the kitchen counters, cabinets and appliances are in a space out of any traffic path.

There are two bathrooms in the bedroom wing to the right of the entrance hall. The master bedroom is at the front, away from the rear activity areas that can be taken over by the youngsters without keeping the parents on the go. The two junior bedrooms are separated from the family room, but close enough so that the children can come and go in this area without disturbing older gatherings in the living room.

There are many ways into this house: through the front door leading to the entrance hall; the back door via the rear porch for dirt-free access to the mud-room and kitchen; the garage entry, which takes you past the pantry and enables groceries to be put away quickly; the sliding glass doors to the family room; and the covered passageway from the garage to the front door.

No area has to carry the burden of traffic intended for any other part of the house, which makes for a more relaxed kind of living.

Design Z-80 has a clean, modern look, with touches of the traditional. It would be difficult to determine that the expanse of brick veneer at the left front of the house, with shuttered, windows and a low stone planter, is actually the garage.

Z-80 Statistics

Design Z-80 is a ranch with a living room, dining room, family room, kitchen-dinette, three bedrooms, two batsh, a lavatory, hallway, mudroom-laundry and plenty of storage space. Its habitable area, excluding the garage and the service section behind it, is 1,640 square feet. The over-all dimensions are 74 feet 8 inches by 43 feet 3 inches. The plans call for a basement, but the house could be built on a concrete slab with some adjustments.

Don't let anyone advise you on whether to buy an old or a new house unless he knows, down to the last detail, what it is you want in a home.

Like almost everything else you buy that requires you to make a choice, there are advantages and disadvantages to both new and old houses. Once you match those advantages and disadvantages to the things that are most important to your family, you are in a position to decide the kind of house to purchase.

A new house will give you the virtues of new construction materials and building techniques. The plumbing fixtures will be easier to operate and are likely to cause you no trouble for many years to come. You can choose room arrangements that suit your own taste rather than those of a previous owner. And the chances are that your maintenance costs will be minimal for some time.

But — if the development is in a new or growing neighborhood, your taxes may increase every year as schools and other facilities are built. And it will be quite a while before your landscaping is arranged the way you want it. Also, you risk the possibility that the neighborhood will change in character in the years ahead.

An old house will include a number of extras that would have cost you a considerable sum had you added them to a new home. The chances are the landscaping has been done and will need only the usual attention. If it's a settled neighborhood and has been that way for a number of years, it is not likely to change.

But — you'll have to put aside a certain amount of money every year for repairs. The decor may not suit you and it will cost you money to redecorate. And, since lending institutions will give you a larger mortgage on a new house, you will have to make a larger down payment to swing the transaction on an old house. The purchaser who isn't quite sure whether he wants a new or old house will be wise to look at both kinds. Usually, he will find that he gets more in an old house for the same amount of money. But — to a woman especially — this may not be as important as life in a new house, where everything is sparkling clean and where there are modern improvements designed for what is known as gracious living.

Jack O'Brian's

New York's Voice of Broadway

NEW YORK — Bob Hope's press agent didn't send us this one: Bob gave Southern Methodist U. $802,000 to build a campus theatre — It's a real romance between Joe Namath and Kaye Stevens a new baby-blue Cadillac to match Joe's eyes — And she buys Joe jewelry — Lucille Ball's rolling CBS for another big TV pay-hike — Hockey's Babe Ruth, Bobby Hull, will welcome his fourth parental score any edition — One of the first films President Nixon requested for White House viewing: "2001: A Space Odyssey" — Meyer Davis' orchestra played for nine consecutive Inaugural Balls and the first President to write him a personal thank-you note was Dick Nixon.

Anita Eckberg and hubby Rick Nutter broke their jump to Acapulco at Barney Google's where they were the only ones frugging to the jukebox at 5:30 in the afternoon — Petula Clark's stardom suddenly hit her pleasantly in the ego: she'll get Nixon's lush Presidential Suite at the Miami Beach Hilton Plaza when she stars there — After that Pet plans only movies.

"Dear World" stars Angela Lansbury and it's no great shakes but most assuredly Angela is — She proves her triumphant stardom in "Mame!" was no accident, and "Dear World" is an accident that should be delighted Miss Lansbury happened to it.

When the U.S. Ambassador to Australia presented Aussie Prime Minister John Gorton with a 70-pound cake on behalf of the crew of the aircraft carrier Coral Sea, the box was opened and — one huge slice was missing and this message was in its place: "The Phantom strikes again!"

Anna Moffo in a Zhivago outfit in Gallagher's was just a sartorial test run: she leaves for Russia shortly to play Desire in Warner's "Tschaikovsky" — At the Personality television show, Eve Arden said, "If I could have a dinner invitation from anyone, I'd like it from Onassis and Jackie, just to see how they're getting along." — Richly, Eve — Erstwhile Fat Jack F. Leonard shortly will have his own label Diet Soda on the market.

Raymond Helriegel who worked with Queens D.A. Tom Mackell to break the huge N.Y. car theft ring — had his car stolen — On its seat were printed tips on how not to get it heisted — There's so much N.Y. Crime, a Greenwich Village liquor store was stuck up and the owner murdered and it never got in the papers — Gun City.

It'll be the 30th anniversary of the demolition of the 6th Ave. Elevated soon: since it came down (and was sold to Japan which turned the steel into armament used against the U.S.) 6th Ave. has gone flossy, labors under the seldom mentioned name Avenue of the Americas, and is the communications centre of the U.S.: gathered around its now skyscrapered length are NBC, CBS, ABC, Time Inc., the AP, Whitney Communications, MGM, etc.

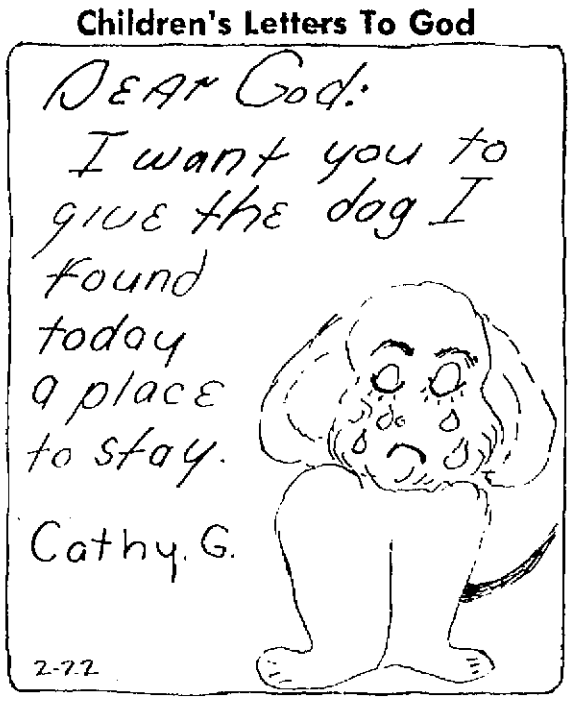
He's by far the junior top-brass among network bosses but NBC's Julian Goodman in three years hoisted its gross sales from $488 million a year to $600 million — There's another strong rumor of a shakeup at Black Rock — the trade's nickname for the CBS Building — Your next-fall television fare is being decided right now: all networks will announce their '69-'70 schedules no later than Feb. 21.

Mai Britt supposedly had a handsome doctor on call after she divorced Sammy Davis Jr. but she's been playing the field...Latest, Lenart Rinquist..Name-dropper... Jackie Gleason's the main Miami Beach lure after sun and climate but where does the Fat One vacation? He's in Nassau now...And his Miami-residing partner Jack Philbin has been vacationing in Palm Beach.

Clark Gable's widow Kay, who has a chronic cardiac problem, had a slight attack more a scare than a problem but she was hospitalized anyway...Durably nice gal, Kay..

The Rip Torns (Geraldine Page) need a little patchwork. . . Jeff Hunter and lovely Mai Tai Sing share the same chopsticks. . . Radio Station WBAI (which aired alleged anti-Semitic poetry) had a bomb scare. . . Mrs. Vincent Sardi Jr. (Adele Rasey) may get her own TV talk show. . . Memphis, Tenn. diva Patricia Welting will get a Met Opera buildup. . . N.Y. fuzz say hippies are cooling it.

Children's Letters To God



Ann Landers

Miscarriages

Dear Ann Landers: My brother and his wife have been married 12 years. They have two children. Kay is self conscious about not having a larger family. Her sisters each have five children.

Whenever Kay is asked how many children she has, she says, "We have two. We lost three."

Kay has had three miscarriages — all within the first two months of pregnancy. She didn't go to the hospital with any of them. Would you consider these children?

BIG Q

Dear Q: I do not consider miscarriages children, but if your sister-in-law wants to, it doesn't bother me. And it shouldn't bother you, either.

Dear Ann Landers: You people in the United States are not the only ones who are deeply concerned about the widespread use of drugs among young people. We Canadians are struggling with the problem also.

As a high school teacher who has worked in the Toronto system for 20 years, I would like to pass on some useful information to other teachers who need guidance. You published information several months ago to help parents detect whether or not children were "on something." A pamphlet put out by the American Pharmaceutical Association is designed to help teachers. Here are some useful clues:

Change in school attendance.

Change in quality of homework.

Deterioration in appearance.

Wearing of sunglasses in class.

Wearing of long-sleeved garments in hot weather (to hide needle marks).

Stealing of small items.

Finding the student in unseemly places such as closets, storerooms, etc.

Falling asleep in class.

And now, Ann, some parents as well as teachers need to know how to recognize a marijuana cigaret. Will you publish the description? Thank you.

TORONTO STAR READER

Dear Reader: Thank you for your contribution. And now here is the description you requested:

Marijuana cigarets are usually rolled in a double thickness of light brown or off-white paper. They are somewhat smaller than regular cigarets with the paper twisted or tucked in at both ends. Marijuana is green in color rather than brown like ordinary tobacco. The ordor of burning marijuana is similar to burning rope or weeds, somewhat sweeter than tobacco.

Users call marijuana by odd names. If you hear someone refer to grass, pot, hemp, tea, sticks, roaches, joints, hay, or Mary Jane, he is talking about marijuana.

Opening lead—queen of clubs.

This business of counting your winners and losers during the play can be very confusing. Clearly your winners and losers together ought to add up to 13, but sometimes they don't.

Here is a case in point. Study all four hands and you see that South has four losers—a spade, a heart and two diamonds. However, if he plays correctly, declarer winds up making ten tricks despite the four losers.

West leads a club. South observes that if the trumps are divided 3-2 he will lose only a spade and two diamonds. He therefore gives thought to the possibility of a 4-1 division, and considers what he can do to overcome that distribution if it exists.

After winning the club he leads the ace and another spade, a farsighted move to provide against a bad trump break. West wins with the ten and plays the jack of clubs.

South takes the ace and tests the trumps by cashing the A-K. West shows out on the king and South, after first congratulating himself on his perspicacity, leads a spade from dummy and ruffs.

He then trumps a club in dummy and leads the nine of spades. By this time, South has the Q-8 of trumps left, while East has the J-10. If East discards on the spade, South ruffs with the eight to bring himself to ten tricks consisting of the A-K-Q of trumps, the two ruffs in his hand, the club ruff in dummy, and four high-card tricks on the side.

East cannot affect the outcome by ruffing the fourth round of spades. If he does, South discards a diamond, thus merging a diamond and trump loser into one trick. Now he loses only a spade, a heart and a diamond.

The early play of the ace and another spade is the key to the contract.

Alan King energetic royalty in world of entertainment

(C) 1969 New York Times News Service

NEW YORK — Alan King an energetic operator who has had his hand in practically every phase of show business — with the possible exception of finger painting — is now preparing to make his debut as a movie producer. The comedian-entrepreneur has acquired screen rights to "An Eskimo Named Joe Siegelman," a play by Abe Einhorn.

King, who produced and starred in "The Impossible Years" on the stage, admitted that he was "disillusioned about Broadway. When Abe Einhorn, who happens to be a working Broadway stagehand, came to me with 'Eskimo' as a possible stage vehicle, I immediately saw it as a film. It's a pathos-filled comedy about a very moral middle-class New Yorker who has disturbing sexual fantasies about his very moral wife."

So, what does he do? He puts on an eskimo suit, of course. "Then everyone — his wife, his daughter, his psychiatrist and a male nurse — tries to help him solve his problem. Ernest Pintoff will work on the script and perhaps direct, and I may wind up playing the male nurse."

Einhorn, who is 43 and happily married and doesn't have an eskimo suit, has been writing diligently for more than 17 years. He sold his first play, "Thursday Is A Good Night," in 1964 but it didn't quite make it to Broadway.

Two years ago, another Einhorn effort, "Agatha Sue, I Love You" did make it . . . but not for long. "I wrote 'Eskimo' with Broadway in mind," Einhorn said, "but I couldn't be happier if it makes it as a film." Even if it doesn't make it as a film, there's surely room on TV for a man in a sexy eskimo suit.

Old enough to have fond memories of Disney's "Snow White"? Well, only the heroine's name will be the same in Universal's feature-length treatment of Donald Barthelme's updated version, a story published in the New Yorker magazine in February, 1967.

According to a Universal spokesman, Barthelme's swinging lass "shares her New York apartment with seven young men while waiting for her prince to show up."

Producer Dick Berg will be giving the story the youth treatment, having hired a 22-year-old to direct and a 24-year-old to write the script. Director Steven Spielberg, who has never done a feature before, impressed Berg with "Amblin'," a short about hippies. Writer Larry Grusin has heretofore worked in TV.

Sue Farmer first artist

Lenten series begins Sunday

EAST STROUDSBURG — Sue Farmer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest H. Farmer, and an organ student of Robert C. Currier, minister of music at East Stroudsburg Methodist Church, will be the first artist presented in a series of lenten vesper services held in the sanctuary of the church begining Sunday at 4:30 p.m.

Miss Farmer has been a student with Currier for the past four years. She has also had advanced organ studies with the organist of the national cathedral in Washington, D.C. and others. Her selections are in the lenten theme.

She will also play for the congregational singing and will provide the organ background for lenten poetry interpreted by Rev. Harold C. Eaton.

A meditation series by Rev. Eaton, "Faces around the Cross" — will be started by "The Face of Perversity — Pilate."

The vesper services continue each Sunday afternoon and will climax with the presentation of the community chorus, directed by Numa Snyder, on Palm Sunday afternoon — March 30.

Architect's drawing of proposed Salvation Army Headquarters and Community Center

$400,000 campaign in March

Salvation Army to construct center

STROUDSBURG—Architect's plans and design of the proposed Salvation Army Corps Headquarters and Community Center have been presented by Captain Rex Worthy, commanding officer of the Monroe County Salvation Army unit, to the local advisory board.

A capital fund raising campaign is being initiated to raise the $400,000 necessary to build the new center, headed by Clifford R. Cramer and William P. Wells, co-chairman.

The new center will be built on the site of the former East Stroudsburg Lumber Co. adjoining a service station, at 226 Washington St.

Capt. Worthy presented the plans, prepared by Runker, Kiefer and Rake, architects and engineers, of Stroudsburg, during a formal meeting in the First Stroudsburg National Bank.

Capt. Worthy said the center will encompass 14,000 square feet on two levels. One of the prominent features will be a multi-purpose room which will facilitate basketball and other organized sporting events, as well as a variety of community meetings.

"Another unique feature," Capt. Worthy noted, "will be the Family Lodge which will permit local social service organizations to house an entire family which may have lost its home through a disaster, such as fire."

President Judge Arlington W. Williams is advisory board chairman. Clifford R. Gillam and Ernest H. Wyckoff are hononary chairmen.

PTA fires heavy salvo in battle to save Water Gap's grade school

By BOB GROFF
Pocono Record Reporter

DELAWARE WATER GAP — The Delaware Water Gap Parent-Teachers Assn. does indeed intend to fight the closing of the Delaware Water Gap School by the Stroudsburg School District.

That the PTA will fight the issue was made clear Friday in a statement by Mrs. John Powlus, president of the Water Gap PTA.

"The local newspaper covered the school board's views of the proposal to close our school, which we can understand, but the paper did not include views stated by the parents. I would like to state some of the facts so that other taxpayers have a true picture of the school situation," she said.

Seven points

Mrs. Powlus presented seven points which, in effect, refuted the arguments presented by Rodney Baechtold, Stroudsburg School Board member, and Samuel O. Wells, district superintendent, for the closing of the three-room school, housing 26 pupils taught by two teachers.

Mrs. Powlus first stated the PTA's views concerning economics of operating the school. The school board said the operation of the school was uneconomical.

"The school tax taken in by our borough is over $77,000. It costs the school board approximately $19,000 to operate the Delaware Water Gap school. This figure includes $15,600 in teacher's salaries, which would still be paid if the teachers were sent to another school," she said.

She also pointed out that the school board millage is 49 mills and that if broken down, it costs approximately two-thirds of one mill to operate the school.

The school was criticized for not having adequate recreation facilities, library facilities and for not having a cafeteria to afford hot lunches for the children.

Of the recreational program, Mrs. Powlus said, "Our children have swings, a slide and monkey bars. They get other exercise walking to and from school and on their playground which is not large, but adequate for the children of this age.

She added that the school district pays $8,500 per year for rent for six classrooms at St. John's Lutheran Church which has no playground, no gym and not even swings.

Also, she pointed out that the school house in Water Gap does not belong to the school district and no rent has ever been paid for the use of it.

"Concerning our library," Mrs. Powlus said, "each classroom has its own library, consisting of World Book Encyclopedias, Child Craft books and additional reading material needed at the age level of the pupils."

She stated that the children are not limited to only being able to go to a library once a week. "These children utilize their libraries at any time of day. We feel this is a wonderful way for a child to get started in school," she added.

According to Mrs. Powlus, each classroom has a television set, they also have a movie projector, a slide projector and a library of films. Many of these items, including books, have been supplied by the PTAs over the past years, she said.

"As for a cafeteria, most of our children go home for lunch. For those who wish to stay, they bring their lunch and have a special room in which to eat," she pointed out.

Mrs. Powlus said that the current enrollment at the school is 26. However, she stated, we do have families who will be in need of the school in the next year and after.

She said that with the addition of these children, "We feel that in two years, the enrollment would be back up to at least 40 children."

"We have suggested that until the enrollment is up to this figure, that some children be bussed to Delaware Water Gap from somewhere in Stroudsburg or nearby area, using the empty buses that now go to and from the Gap," she said.

This, she added, would also help to relieve the overload of children in other schools.

Good rooms

"Keeping the Water Gap school open," she continued, "would fully utilize existing facilities and give the children rooms with windows and fresh air, not cellars and basement rooms."

"There are now 13 classrooms in basements of schools in Stroudsburg. Why should our children, or any other children, be placed in such facilities when we have such a fine schoolhouse," she asked.

Mrs. Powlus said, "Our schoolhouse has been termed 'antiquated,' as has the Ramsey School. However, we have been told the Ramsey School will remain open. This is where our children will be sent if our school is closed, from one antiquated school to another."

"The term we like to use in describing our school is 'quaint'," she commented.

Mrs. Powlus concluded, "These are some of the factors we would like the school board to take into consideration before making a decision on the school closing. The PTA also would like to extend an invitation to any resident in the Stroudsburg School District to come and visit our schoolhouse."

Poll favors keeping school open

DELAWARE WATER GAP — In a poll conducted by the Pocono Record Friday, seven mothers contacted in Delaware Water Gap expressed opposition to the closing of the borough's school.

Mrs. Mildred Ahmed — "I came from the city. We bought this house here because there was a school in this community. I don't want over crowded schools. Sentimental reasons do not enter into this. The school should definitely not be closed."

Mrs. Cora Kaiser — "I can't understand why they would want to close this school and take our children to Stroudsburg where they are overcrowded. They should at least wait until the other school is built. It would be different if the school was already built."

Mrs. Pat Singer — "I really feel the children have a better chance for a better education here than in the other schools. The low pupil-teacher ratio is wonderful. The other schools are also experiencing some overcrowding which we are not."

Mrs. Harold Lightner — "I think it is a cultural asset to our community. I think it is very necessary for us and our small youngsters. It is a shame to put our youngsters in crowded schools when we have one here that is not overcrowded."

Mrs. Martha Smith — "I am for keeping the school open. I cannot see their argument about not adjusting to bigger schools when our children leave here. I have two sons at Ramsey and they adjusted with no problems. I have one son in the Water Gap school now. I enjoy having him home for lunch and knowing that he is being well cared for. I can't see any reason why they want to close it."

Mrs. Janet Vogel — " I am opposed to the closing because I think they really need the school for the children. I have a daughter who will be leaving there at the end of this year. They should keep it open for other children coming into school. The teachers are very capable and have done a wonderful job with the children."

Mrs. Suzanne Inomata— "I am in favor of keeping the school open. The school has been labeled economically unsound. This is not true. It was reported in the Pocono Record that the average cost per student in the Stroudsburg School District was about $800 and the cost per student at the Gap school was twice that much.

"The fact is that it costs about $20,000 per year to operate the Gap school with its present enrollment of 26 students, or about the same as the cost per pupil in the rest of the school district."

No report on shooting

Youth explains views on racial issue

STROUDSBURG — Racial values and attitudes of Monroe County's young people were expounded by four local high school students during a "black and white" panel discussion recently.

The panel, sponsored by the Monroe County Inter-racial Council was held in the Stroudsburg Methodist Church to evaluate and gather information for the county's report to the 1970 White House Conference on Youth and Children.

Rev. David G. High, pastor of the host church was moderator. James Leiding, psychology professor at East Stroudsburg State College explained the purpose of the discussion. He said every 10 years, each state is to report to the White House on the problems facing today's youth.

Panelists were Richard C. McClelland and Dale A. Chambers, both of Stroudsburg High School and Sally Newcombe and Carlene Neal, both of East Stroudsburg High. All are seniors.

Changes quiet

The panelists were asked if racial attitudes have improved generally since the 1960 conference and whether there have been any significant changes.

"Definitely, there have been changes," Chambers said, "mostly among the black because they are developing more pride." He said his race wants to make the white man understand and until the white man does understand there will be unrest.

Chambers said "To achieve the goals of the black man the help of the white man is needed. We want to know more about black history. We are seeking identity."

"Most of the adults are behind the times," Chambers said. "They don't realize the young people want more today and know they can get it", Chambers said on the question of dating and outward evidence of prejudice.

McClelland, the white counterpart of the panel, said he feels "There is a much greater awareness on both sides and that both sides realize now that something has to be done."

McClelland conveyed a feeling that students are being told "what" to do, rather than" how", and with an explanation of "why".

Miss Neal said both cultures, black and white, should be studied.

Miss Newcombe felt the problems are "opening up" with a "lot of frustration" on both sides. "This is something that has to be done individually. You can't do it with laws unless the people first do it for themselves."

"Afro-American history is necessary and I think a lot of kids really would like to take it," (or a course) Miss Newcombe said.

Chambers said he finds a definite need for improvement in acceptance, in answer to the dating question.

The group continued to discuss interracial marriages, the ultimate objectives of the races, intergration of the churches and general areas of improvement in racial relationships.

State seeks road bids

HARRISBURG — The State Highway Department will seek bids for resurfacing a portion of Legislative Route 164 in Polk and Chestnuthill Township.

A total 12,750 linear feet will be resurfaced with bituminus surface for a 22 feet width. Legislative Route 164, noted also as Route 209, runs from Weir Lake to McIlhaney.

State organizes fight on organized crime

STROUDSBURG — Monroe County District Attorney, Philip H. Williams was among the 28 district attorneys and their representatives who attended a private briefing in Harrisburg Friday with members of the State Justice Department and the Pennsylvania Crime Commission.

The first of subsequent briefings to help fight organized crime was formed to establish a continuous channel of communications and to encourage a cooperative exchange of information between the Justice Department and the local district attorney offices.

The briefing covered many subjects and aspects of the field of "Crime for profit" such as burglary, hijacking, gambling and loan-sharking.

Atty. Gen. William C. Sennett, J. Shane Creamer, director of the Crime Commission, and the entire crime commission staff was on hand to discuss with the district attorneys, the organized crime syndicate operating in the state.

Up to date

District attorneys were brought up to date on current constitutional revision legislation and crime bills to help local and county law enforcement units and strengthen the entire state leagal system to fight organized crime.

Williams said the briefing was "a real organized effort on the part of the Justice Department in Harrisburg to help local offices and make their services readily available to us."

"It will be good to know that we just need to pick up the telephone and get the help when needed," Williams said. "It was a very detailed and informative meeting, getting acquainted with all the personnel that are involved in dealing with crime."

This was not the first meeting of this kind according to Williams. He said they are called periodically by the attorney general to exchange viewpoints and there will be follow-up meetings on an individual basis.

Although Monroe County is not known to be one of the counties directly tied in with organized crime it can still fit in with the Crime Commission's attempt to get statistics to Williams.

Williams said the group was oriented on organized crime, given the identities and activities of leaderships of organized crime. More than 20 names were revealed from the Scranton, Wilkes-Barre, Hazleton coal region, Williams noted.

Williams pointed out that the State Department of Instruction will issue a study curriculum on crime which will be made available to local justices of the peace. The DPI is working on the course with the Pennsylvania Bar Assn., representatives and attorneys of the State Justice department.

Rev. Marshall J. Riu with crosses

Crosses highlight service for lent

STROUDSBURG — "Christians today must be ready for either a life of suffering and perhaps sudden death or a life of plodding work lasting many years," Rev. Marshall J. Riu said during the service of dedication on Ash Wednesday.

The special service was held in Zion United Church of Christ, Stroudsburg.

"In either case, as it is done for Christ, both are equally important and both equally glorify God," Rev. Riu told the worshippers.

A three-foot high worship center, made of 100, five-inch walnut wood crosses, became the focal point of the service.

During a time of personal dedication to Christ, the worshippers approached the worship center, each taking a wooden cross. Returning to their pews, they were led in a litany of dedication to Christ by Rev. Riu.

At the end of the service, the worshippers were charged with the chellenge to take their crosses home and place them in a conspicuous place as a reminder of the vows made during the service.

Rev. Riu preached on the topic, "First Called; First Martyred," the first in a series of messages entitled "Twelve Men of the Cross."

He told the stories of the apostles James and John, comparing their lives. James died a martyr on the altar of scarifice and John died quietly among friends in his old age.

The anthem, "When I survey the Wondrous Cross," presented by the teen-senior choir, directed by Mrs. Lucy Quig, concluded the service of dedication.

Stroud Township

Crooks supervisor candidate

STROUDSBURG — William R. Crooks, a 40-year-old Stroud Township resident, has announced his candidacy for Stroud Township supervisor.

Crooks, a native of the Stroudsburg area, is seeking to fill the vacancy of Harold E. Albert, who announced that he will not seek another term after 25 years on the board of supervisors.

Crooks said he developed an interest in the township's decision-making body by attending many meetings as a citizen in the past and pointed out the need to get more of the township residents involved in helping the supervisors make decisions for the benefit and welfare of all the people of the township.

"I am interested in seeing an organized and regulated growth of our township," Crooks said, "and to see that the people are getting the most for their money."

For example, Crooks cited the need to improve and expand recreational facilities, not necessarily through more taxes, but through a better distribution of available funds, local and state.

William R. Crooks

Open meetings

Crooks said he would like to see more open meetings, similar to the old townhouse meetings where the whole township would be involved and interested in its own growth.

This will be Crooks' first public office. He has been employed by Western Electric Co. for the past 17 years in the installation department.

He served twice in the military service, state-side, during 1946-1947 and again for one year during the Korean conflict.

Crooks completed the business administration course from Scranton-Lackawanna Business College, after graduating from Stroud Union High School in 1946.

For the past six years, Crooks has been an active member of the Stroud Township Fire Co., serving as vice president the past three years and a member of the board of directors the past four years.

He is also an active supporter of local sports and organizations and a member of the Stroudsburg Varsity "S" Club.

Crooks lives at 1613 N. Fifth St., with his wife and three children, Susan, 10; Linda, seven and Joanne, six.

Cavaliers defeat Cardinals for .500 season

Eastburg rallies in second half

POCONO MOUNTAIN — It took 10 years but East Stroudsburg finally reached the .500 level in basketball.

The Cavaliers gained their 11th win in 22 outings Friday night by spurting in the final period to down Pocono Mountain, 79-72. The Cardinals finished with a 5-17 record.

Not since the 1956-57 season had the Cavaliers had a .500 season. And the way things went in the first half it appeared they would have to wait another year.

With the Cardinals playing inspired ball, the host five led 22-20 after the first period and increased the lead to 44-34 at intermission.

But the third period has been a jinx to Pocono Mountain all season and this night was no exception.

The Cardinals still had a 53-46 lead when 6-4 junior Matt Hood turned the game into a one-man show. Hood made a layup and two fouls before Jerry Davis hit from the corner for the Cardinals.

Hood then added another foul and two more shots from inside to close the gap to 55-54. A Joe Viechnicki jumper gave Eastburg a 56-55 lead.

The lead then changed hands several times until a Hood layup gave the Cavs a 63-60 lead. After Ed Horn hit a long jumper, Viechnicki followed up a missed shot and Tom Kishbaugh made two fouls to make it 67-62.

Then with the Cavs leading 71-68 Ullo and Viechnicki scored from the floor to open a 76-68 lead with only 50 seconds left.

Hood set a personal high with 36 points, including 14 of 16 from the foul line. Kishbaugh, with 12, was the only other Cavalier in double figures.

Horn had 21, Davis 12 and Bernie Vigna 11 for the Cardinals.

Eastburg made it a clean sweep with a 64-44 romp in the preliminary action.

Williams plans curfew, no serious card playing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Ted Williams took over the Washington Senators Friday as the highest-paid manager in major league baseball history and immediately set two basic rules: "there will be no serious card playing on this club and there will be a curfew."

The Boston Hall of Famer, the last player to hit over .400 in the majors, told a jampacked news conference he has agreed to a five-year contract as manager of the Senators and has worked out a stock arrangement in connection with owner Robert E. Short.

His salary is expected to run toward the neighborhood of $75,000 and his part ownership interest in the Senators is expected to boost his pay even higher. Williams' part ownership in the Senators will come from stock he will purchase in Short's holdings.

Williams, who will also hold the title of vice president, told newsmen of his return as a manager: "I hope I've matured a little more and I believe my thinking is a little better."

The 50-year-old baseball great acknowledged he has "things to learn" as a manager but said he thinks that since his retirement as a player "I have prepared myself mentally and know this is a real challenge."

Asked which manager he would use as his model, Williams said immediately it would be Joe McCarthy, who managed him in Boston and led the New York Yankees to their baseball triumphs in the 1930s.

"The greatest manager I ever played under who had the most pluses was Joe McCarthy. He instilled in his players the most business-like attitude of any manager I ever played with," Williams said.

He was asked if, as a manager, he could get along with a temperamental player "like Ted Williams."

Williams, in an affable mood, quickly snapped: "If he can hit like Ted Williams, yes."

When a newsman questioned the type of discipline he would impose on last year's 10th place Senators, the former Red Sox slugger said:

"I know two rules we'll have on the club. There will be no serious card playing and there'll be a curfew."

Williams said he had never been fined or thrown out of a game. "I was lucky," he added, grinning.

A moment later, he said he thinks he will be a quiet-mannered manager. "I'm not going to be out there all the time raising hell with the umpires," he said.

Williams, wearing a western string tie, was asked how he thought he would get along in his new role with the press, with whom he clashed often while a player.

"I'm going to do my best to get along with them," he told the newsmen. "My attitude has never been as bad as it's been reported. I'm not hard to get along with and except for a small minority, I've always gotten along with the press."

The signing was announced amid a background of kleig lights and television cameras that made the occasion seem more like the premiere of a multimillion dollar Hollywood spectacular.

The actual signing of the contract was done in relative privacy between Williams and Short in the Washington owner's hotel suite in Washington shortly after Williams' arrival by jet at 5:10 p.m. It then was restaged with a blank contract for the benefit of TV and news photographers in one of the hotel's banquet rooms nearly two hours later.

Ted Williams made it official Friday when he culminated a week of will-he-or-won't-he conjecture by signing a "fantastic" five-year contract as manager and part owner of the Washington Senators. Here, Williams restages the contract signing with club owner Robert Short (left). Sign in background reads, "It's A Whole New Ball Game in 1969." (UPI Telephoto)

Day in court

(C) 1969 New York Times News Service

NEW YORK — Van Buren High School's basketball team was reinstated in the citywide championships, and its star, Len Whitted, was declared eligible to play by a Queens Supreme court decision Friday that may have great impact upon first the conduct of sports in New York and, ultimately, the entire concept of neighborhood schools.

Whitted is a shy, 6-foot 4-inch sophomore who is considered a prime prospect for college professional stardom. He has been considered a prime prospect since he was in the sixth grade and scouts from every level of organized basketball noted his name in their future books. Whitted, now 17 years old, this season led Van Buren unbeaten through 15 games to a berth in the Public Schools Athletic League tournament.

But Whitted's widowed mother lives in a neighborhood serviced by Jamaica High, and repsesentatives of that school and Forest Hills High lodged protests about the youth's eligibility with the high school games committee.

In testimony before Supreme Court Justice Frank O'Connor, it appeared that the games committee studied two conflicting bureau of attendance reports, then based its decision to forfeit all Van Buren victories on the opinion of the board of education's law secretary.

Two attendance officers had been sent at different times to find out if Whitted was living at home or with his godgather, James Jackson, in a neighborhood serviced by Van Buren. One officer thought the attic room in the Jackson house was indeeds Len's, another thought it was a ruse to get him into what Mrs. Whitted declared Friday "was a better school in every way."

The law secretary had quoted to the games committee a section of the state education law which holds that the residence of a minor child is that of his natural parent.

The games committee's decision was appealed by the principal of Van Buren, and Dr. Bernard Donovan, the superintendent of schools, overruled it. First, he declared Whitted ineligible, but reduced the forfeiture so Van Buren could play in the tournament. But then he reversed his decision, and eliminated the team again. Meanwhile, the Queens portion of the tournament, scheduled to start Friday was postponed as the community action for Legal Services, Inc., a city anti-poverty agency obtained a show-cause order temporarily enjoining the tournament from starting. The agency was representing Whitted. The lawyer assigned was Mark H. Spiers.

Friday, they had their day in court.

In his opening remarks, Spires, a chunky, intense man, alluded to "an existing struggle between basketball coaches in Queens" of which young Whitted had become a "target."

There was danger of Whitted becoming "tainted," said the lawyer, by "scurrilous statements" that had the youth seeking lunches, free tickets and other favors. There were intimations, said Spires, of proselytizing."

In the corridors of the court house, coaches from other Queens high schools were hardly intimating, and the word they used was "recruit." They were convinced, they said, that if young Whitted was allowed to play for Van Buren, coaches would be enticing boys out of their high schools with promises of college scholarships, summer camp jobs, or just the chance to play on a better team.

The tournament has already begun, and the Queens portions of it are expected to be held on Tuesday, as if there had been no action whatsoever.

Pott leads Tucson by one shot

TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI)—Johnny Pott, getting hotter as the round went on, grabbed the lead Friday in the second round of the $100,000 Tucson Open as he fired a 65 for a 36-hole total of 135, nine under par.

Pott, seeking his first win since the 1968 Bing Crosby tourney, was one stroke ahead of Dale Douglass, 67-69—136, and two ahead of first round leader Miller Barber and U.S. Open champion Lee Trevino.

Barber, with a hot 65 in the opening round, played the 7,305-yard par 72 Tucson National Golf Club course in even par. Trevino shot a 70.

The field was cut after the round, leaving 75 players to seek money from the purse in the final two rounds. The cutoff was a two over par 146.

Pott, who complained of missing putts in his first round of 70, was happy with his greens play on the second round.

"I missed three or four putts from under 12 feet and then I suddenly started making them," Pott said.

Five of Pott's seven birdies came in the second half of the round, including putts of 20 and 30 feet.

Douglass, who said his driver started failing him late in the round, ended with four birdies and a single bogey.

Trevino could have tied Pott except for the 18th where he drove his tee shot into one of two lakes bordering the fairway and took a double bogey six.

Owners reject latest offer, intervention from government

NEW YORK (UPI)—The Major League Players Association, getting far less than full support in its boycott of spring training camps, lowered its pension demands Friday but baseball owners promptly rejected the offer.

The Association proposed a new settlement of $5.9 million, some $600,000 less than its original demand, but the owners, holding firm at $5.3 million, called the players' new figure "beyond realistic approach."

A spokesman for the owners said settlement of the dispute "is not one bit closer" and that there is no point in holding further meetings until a vote of individual players is taken. The players lowered their demand after owners refused to accept government intervention in their pension battle.

The owners asked the association to poll its membership, rather than just the player representatives, a move which Marvin Miller, executive director of the players association, called "a stalling tactic. They've refused arbitration and refused mediation. They're just sitting back. Unfortunately, they have no desire to make an agreement."

Miller said the poll of the players will take approximately two weeks. Another meeting had been scheduled for Monday, he said.

Miller also acused the owners of being "scared to death" when they declined an offer from a government agency for mediation early Friday.

In a wire to Frank H. Brown, regional director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliatory Service, John Gaherin, attorney for the owners, said, "The major league baseball clubs are satisfied not only that negotiations with the players are not at an impasse but that parties possess the desire and ability to resolve the remaining issues in the pending negotiations.

"Hence, we respectfully decline your invitation to attend the meeting scheduled for next Monday in your office."

The players had asked Brown to step in as an arbitrator on Thursday and a meeting had been scheduled for 2 p.m. EST Monday.

The two factions have agreed on all proposals made by the players except for funding of the pension. Included in the proposals already agreed upon are those involving retirement, disability benefits, pension benefits, widow's benefits, life insurance and health care benefits.

The main obstacle still remains the pension funding. The owners voted to increase the funding by $1 million and then proposed an additional $200,000, boosting the entire package to $5.3 million. This figure was rejected unanimously in a vote by player representatives.

The current figure of $5.9 million, a drop from the $6.5 million originally asked for, includes a share of radio and television broadcasting rights.

The players' position, which seems to be weakening gradually, suffered a severe setback Friday when a total of 46 players, 27 of them with major league experience, reported to the new Kansas City Royals' first full squad training session.

Included among the Royals reporting were Jon Warden, Galen Cisco, Orlando Pena, Tracy Stallard, Larry Sherry, Dave Wickersham, Bob Taylor, Eliseo Rodriguez, Paul Schaal, Chuck Harrison, Jackie Hernandez and George Spriggs.

Joe Foy, the Royals' first choice in the expansion draft, also said he would arrive in a few days, having been delayed by illness in the family.

Warden, 4-1 with the Detroit Tigers last season, took a three-day pass from Army Reserve duty at Ft. Dix, N.J., in order to put in a full weekend of training with the new club.

At Tampa, Fla., pitchers Gary Nolan and Clay Carroll were among the 14 pitchers and catchers who reported as training for Cincinnati batterymen got under way.

Nolan, 9-4 last season, despite being bothered by severe arm troubles early in the year, said he had "been over at the beach meditating. I think all the players feel the same way I do. They are afraid what the others will think if they report. I hope I am doing the right thing and I feel I am."

Other established major leaguers who said they will report for spring training include Ken Harrelson and George Scott of Boston, Tom Seavor of the New York Mets, Pat Jarvis of Atlanta and Bob Bailey of Montreal.

University of Wisconsin athletic board chairman Prof. Frederick Haberman, left, listens as Elroy (Crazy Legs) Hirsch tell reporters he would have to discuss with his family a move to Madison to become athletic director at the UW. Hirsch, assistant to the president of the Los Angeles Rams, would replace the late Ivan B. Williamson. (UPI Telephoto)

Wisconsin AD post offered to Hirsch

MADISON, Wis. (UPI)—Elroy "Crazy Legs" Hirsch said Friday that the athletic director's post at the University of Wisconsin is his if he wants it.

Hirsch, a one-time Wisconsin football star, confirmed reports the job has been offered to him. He said he needs time to think about it before accepting it and leaving his present post as a Los Angeles Rams executive.

Both salary and authority are settled, Hirsch said, but he wants time to discuss the offer with his family and Rams' owner Dan Reeves.

The post has been vacant for more than a month since Ivan B. "Ivy" Williamson was fired after two winless football seasons. Williamson died after a fall in his home Wednesday night while Hirsch was in Madison interviewing for the post.

Prof. Frederick Haberman, athletic board chairman, would not disclose the salary offered Hirsch, but it was believed to range between $25,000 and $30,000 a year. He also was offered a five-year contract.

Hirsch said he considered his position in the Rams' front office a lifetime job.

He said he has been happy in Los Angeles the past 20 years and has "excellent relations" with coach George Allen.

"I promised my family I would return to discuss it," Hirsch said. "I also owe it to Mr. Reeves to discuss it with him. It doesn't mean I am playing one job against the other. I have a lot of thinking to do on it."

Hirsch, one of more than 60 candidates for the job, said he hoped to make a quick decision.

He said he was not haggling over money, that he was making about $30,000 a year with the Rams, but added that "some points had to be cleared up."

He did not say what the points were, but there has been growing concern by alumni the past few years about the dilution of the athletic director's authority by the athletic board.

Hirsch emphasized, however, that authority was settled.

Haberman said there was "tremendous support" for Hirsch as athletic director from the athletic board, alumni and the university's administration.

"We think his quality of leadership, drive, energy and knowledge will lead us to pre-eminence in athletics," Haberman said at a news conference.

Hirsch, a native of Wausau, played only one season for the Badgers, in 1942.

From 1946 through 1948 he played with the Chicago Rockets of the defunct All-America Conference and nearly had his career ended by a severe head injury.

He joined the Rams in 1949 and before he retired as a player in 1957 became one of the team's greatest receivers.

He became general manager in 1960 and Reeves' assistant in 1963.

He said privately a few years ago that his greatest ambition was to be Wisconsin's athletic director.

"The biggest thing about the job, he said Friday, is "the challenge."

Torrez, Belinsky Card surprises

ST PETERSBURG, Fla. (UPI)—The only surprise arrivals when the National League champions St. Louis Cardinals took their first spring work out Friday were two pitchers seeking varsity status, young right hander Mike Torrez and veteran Bo Belinsky.

The 32-year-old Belinsky, three months short of qualifying as a five-year man for pension status, was drafted by the Red Birds last December from Honolulu. Belinsky was the only one of 21 players in camp who did not participate in the opening drill because he first wanted to talk by telephone to the club's player representative Tim McCarver.

"I wanted to tell Tim my reasons for signing and he understood," said the colorful Belinsky.

Torrez, a strapping 22-year-old right hander who had an arm-troubled season at Tulsa said he felt obliged to be on time.

Four more report to White Sox

SARASOTA, Fla. (UPI)—Only four members of the second squad of infielders and outfielders reported to the Chicago White Sox camp Friday, including Rich Morales, Stu Singleton, Jose Ortize and Carlos May.

However, Rookie third baseman Bill Melton and outfielder Buddy Bradford are expected to check in over the weekend. Melton is en route from California and Bradford is on military duty.

When they arrive there will be 21 of the 38 roster members in camp.

"We've got enough now so that we canfield a team for the spring exhibitions," said Vice President Ed Short, "and that means with everyone playing in position."

PV frosh gain eighth victory

BRODHEADSVILLE — The Pleasant Valley Freshman basketball team ended its season Friday with a 57-36 win over Pocono Central Catholic.

High for the Bears (8-4) were Farron Frey and Rick Miexsell with 23 and 12 points in that order.

A's defection list grows to four

MESA, Ariz. (UPI) — The players strike defection list in the Oakland A's camp grew to four Friday when pitchers Paul Lindblad and Tony Pierce agred to 1969 terms and reported to manager Hank Bauer.

On Thursday, the opening day of camp for pitchers and catchers, pitchers John (Blue Moon) Odom and Ed Sprague showed up for work.

Lindblad and Pierce showed up without much comment and presumably were among the seven players owner Charley Finley said had signed contracts previously.

Lindblad appeared in 47 games last year, all but one of them in relief, and posted a 4-3 won-lost record. He had a 2.40 earned run average.

Pierce tore a muscle in his pitching arm and left the A's in June of 1968. In the 17 games in which he worked he posted a 1-2 record. In 1967, his first full season in the majors, Pierce had a 3-4 record in 49 appearances.

Pierce reported to Bauer and then was excused because he is still suffering from the flu.

"I don't care who knows it," said Pierce. "I signed the first contract they sent me. I have a long way to go to win a job on this club."

The addition of Lindblad and Pierce gave the A's 11 pitchers and two catchers in their camp.

The Newfoundland Stags of the Wayne County Amateur League closed out their season with a bang.

A field goal by Dave Jackson, the most valuable player on the Stags the past two seasons, in the final six seconds gave Newfoundland an 82-81 win over previously unbeaten Lake Ariel.

"It was really a big night for us," said coach Floyd Thomas. "We're all middle-aged as far as basketball is concerned—between 23 and 28 years of age. But we played like kids to take this one, everything just went right."

Plans for the Stags (8-4) are now up in the air with playoffs for league position scheduled to begin in March and the possibility of an Old Timers' Night when awards for the season are presented.

In the women's action the semi-finalists are Betty Marsh, Fran Merz, Gladys Fleming and Betty Westphal.

In addition, five men rolled over 600 and lost. Seven of the ladies matches were won with over 550, two of them over 600.

Wall Street sings Dow Jones blues

NEW YORK (UPI) — Wall Street was singing the blues this week as the widely watched Dow Jones industrial average suffered its heaviest loss since mid-1966 and many leading issues hit their lowest levels in over a year.

Trading was brisk, although activity was suspened Friday to observe the Washington's Birthday holiday.

Relief that the 10 per cent surcharge on income will be extended well beyond its expiration date on June 30, recurring rumors that the nation's banks again may boost their prime interest rate, which now stands at an historic high of 7 per cent following three advances since early December, and growing tensions on the international scene were bad medicine for Wall Street.

Treasury Secretary David M. Kennedy reaffirmed his earlier statement that there was little hope for an early easing to the surtax or to record-high interest rates.

Also souring investors was the prolonged stalemate at the Vietnam peace conference in Paris. Round five on Thursday ended with the Communists demanding the complete ouster of United States troops from Vietnam as the initial step toward peace.

In addition, war flames in the Middle East were burning brighter as the world nervously considered a possible Israeli reprisal for the recent Arab commando attack on an El Al airliner in Zurich. And tempers in West Germany were flaring as the Communists planned military maneuvers to coincide with the forthcoming Presidential election in West Berlin. The Soviet Union called the election in the divided city, scheduled for the first week in March, a violent threat to peace.

The New York Stock Exchange Board of Governors, meantime, voted to continue on its present four-hour, five-day trading schedule at least through next month. The NYSE, as well as the American Stock Exchange and the Over-the-Counter markets have been operating on a 10am-2pm schedule since the beginning of the year, and had been on a four-day trading week fro mid-June to the end of 1968. The shorter sessions are to allow brokerage houses extra time to cope with paperwork.

The UPI market indicator, indicator, measuring all stocks traded, plunged 5.98 to 128.82. Of 1,691 issues corssing the tape, 1,450 declined, only 175 advanced. There were 104 new lows set, 25 new highs.

Dow Jones average of 30 blue chip industrials dropped 35.30 to 916.65, its worst decline since the week ended Aug. 19, 1966 when it slid 35.91 to 804.62. DJ rails and utilities also retreated.

The New York Stock Exchange index showed a loss of $2.33 to $56.31 in the average common share price. Standard & Poor's 500 stock index dropped 3.82 to 99.79.

Volume for the four days totaled 45,554,930 shares, against 47,336,244 shares during the previous week, also four days because of the storm. It compared with 34,017,189 shares which changed hands in the comparable period a year ago.

Twentieth Century-Fox topped the list of 20 most active issues which included 19 losers and one gainer. The movie maker, the lone gainer, picked up 1⅜ to 40¾ on 814,400 shares. It is believed to be a takeover target.

Oil issues held second and third place among the actives. Occidental, in the runner up spot, fell 3 to 46⅛ on 578,500 shares, with Sinclair next, sliding 1⅜ to 98½ on 402,300 shares. A Federal court judge granted the Justice Department its request for a preliminary injunction blocking the proposed merger of Sinclair and Atlantic Richfield. The latter fell 11. Other sharply lower oils were Amerada down 8½, Superior 8 and Jersey Standard 5⅝.

Electronics were another heavily traded group, with Control Data and Litton both making the most active list. They fell 7⅛ and 2⅛, respectively, with Litton announcing increased earnings for the first-half ended Jan. 31. IBM, also among the big lowers, fell 13¾; Burroughs 12½; Scientific Data 9; National Cash Register 7⅛ and Honeywell 7.

Also active and considerably lower were Gulf & Western down 4⅝; Loew's Theatres off 7¾; National General 4¾; and AMK Corp., recently said to be holding merger talks with United Fruit, off 4⅞. United Fruit fell 7½.

Johns-Manville stood out in a weak building materials group, falling 6⅝. The balance of the group ranged to more than 3 lower, although housing starts in January spurted to their best level since February of 1964.

Armour gave up 6½. General Host and Greyhound, both seeking Armour shares, dipped 1⅝ and 1½, respectively.

Some additional heavy losers included American Research & Development down 13, Xerox 12; Schukberger 10½; Tandy, despite a 2-for-1 stock split, off 9¼; Carrier Corp. 8½; Ling-Temco Class AA down 8½ and Ling-Temco common off 8⅛.

U.S. Steel and Jones & Laughlin dipped more than 3 in their group despite the seventh consecutive weekly rise in steel output. General Motors eased 2½, softest in its group.

Dow Chemical gave up 2⅛, while Northwest Industries, a holding company created by the Chicago & Northwestern Railroad, dropped 6¼. Other rails ranged to around 2 lower. KLM fell 6¼ in the airlines, while the aerospace group generally ranged a point to 3 lower.

Lenten Guideposts

Direction important to proper life

(EDITOR'S NOTE — This is one of a series of Lenten stories people will tell from incidents in their own lives during the 40 weekdays leading up to Easter Sunday, April 6.)

By TONY FONTANE
Entertainer, Hollywood

I grew up associating religion with poverty. And I hated both of them.

When I was a small boy in my home town of Ann Arbor, Michigan, my father, a Baptist minister, accepted a call from a church in western Canada, but on our way there we came upon a run-down "rescue mission" in Grand Forks, North Dakota, and Dad decided that this was where God wanted him to be.

So we settled down to the only life I knew until I was 17 — a skid row world of derelicts, alcoholics and starving migrants who, it appeared to me, were always ready to sing a hymn in exchange for a meal.

At services I often heard my father tell the men that God would provide for them if they would just abandon themselves to Him. It seemed to me that my parents had certainly abandoned themselves to God, and I saw little evidence that He was providing very much.

Lot of day dreams

Somewhere along the line, I picked up a lot of daydreams. I wanted to be rich and famous, and I got the idea that my world of wealth and fame would be in show business. I thought of little else.

I never hesitated to tell anybody exactly where I was going in life, on my own.

Hearing me, Mother would quote James 4:14: "You know not what you shall be on the morrow. For what is your life? It is just a vapor that appears for a little time and then vanishes away."

I lived only to get away. My chance came when I finished high school. I joined the Coast Guard—the fastest way I knew to get out of town. And I didn't return home until five years later when my mother was dying.

Two hit records

By then, my career was progressing. I had two hit records; I was appearing on nationwide television and in the best night clubs.

Leaving this exciting world even briefly, and even for a reason as serious as my mother's life, bitterly depressed me. The sight of my mother, withering away from cancer of the spine, aroused all my old resentments. I asked her, "Is this the way God treats people who love Him?"

"Don't say that, Tony," she said. "Pray with me. I want to be able to accept God's will."

"Let's pray for a miracle," I suggested, taunting her. "You've got one coming. You've worked hard enough for it."

"The only miracle I want," she said, "is to have enough love for God that I can accept His will for me now. Pray with me Son."

Never really prayed

"No," I said, "I don't pray anymore. I don't think I've ever really prayed in my life."

As soon as I could after Mother's death, I was on my way out of Grand Forks, again feeling free and relieved.

By 1957, I was living like a king. I had my own TV show. I had a beautiful wife, a beautiful daughter, a beautiful home, foreign cars — my self-made world in my hands.

Then, in a split second, that world was wrenched away by a car accident.

At the hospital, the doctor told my wife, Kerry, that I had suffered a fractured skull, brain damage, internal chest injuries; I was blinded and had lost my voice. She handed the doctor a blank check and said, "Fill it out for any amount you need, Doctor. Just save Tony's life."

"In Hands of God"

The doctor refused the check. "There isn't enough money in the world to enable us to do anything for your husband," he said. "He is in the hands of God — God of the impossible."

Kneeling at my bedside, Kerry prayed: "Lord, here and now I accept You as my Savior. I don't know how I'll do it — You'll have to show me — but I promise that I will spend the rest of my life serving You. Let Tony live so that we can serve You together."

With that double-barreled act of faith, my wife committed me to the Lord at a moment I was unable to make any decision of my own.

After God performed the impossible and I began a complete recovery, Kerry told me about her promise — for both of us.

Life has meaning

Kerry's prayer became my prayer, not only because it had saved my life, but because I realized that by serving the Lord my life could now have a meaning and purpose for someone besides myself.

And I have come to know something else. There had been nothing wrong with my ambition to become a successful singer — God gives us our talents to be used.

But what had been wrong was my motivation. Instead of glorifying God with the talents He gave me, I sought success in order to show Him up. I almost had to lose my life to learn that being "poor in spirit" means acknowledging that what I am and what I possess comes from God, and that life has value only when I put nothing before Him.

Learning this, I realized what a truly abundant life my parents had lived.

MONDAY—Archie Moore, former world heavyweight champion, tells how faith has enabled him to lead scores of young boys to a better life.

Barrett picks winners of contest

MOUNTAINHOME — Artistic imagination and work went into the display of home-made valentines by the members of Junior Girl Scout Troop 346, Mountainhome, for the meeting Monday night in the Barrett YMCA.

After judging by the leaders, winners were announced.

Laura Kerz was listed first in the category with the most unusual valentine. Second most unusual valentine award went to Nancy Carol Curtis. The award for the prettiest valentine went to Colleen Zondag and second place for the prettiest was won by Patty Bauman.

The effort which was expended by Donna Komenko won her first place in that category and Cindy Weidner took second place.

Future plans for the troop include a guest night with the Cadette troop arriving for a film, "Our Chalet" and refreshments which will be served after the movie. This activity will satisfy one of the requirements for the Sign of the Star badge.

Girl Scout Week will begin Sunday, March 9.

Members of the Brownie troop, Juniors and Cadettes will attend St. Bernadette's Church and the Canadensis Moravian Church in a group. The girls will attend various houses of worship as representative of all houses of worship to mark Girl Scout Sunday and underline the importance faith has in the life of a girl scout.
